Historic Preservation ordinance back on Bay St. Louis City Council's table

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Staff Writer

Action was urged last week on a long-stalled historic preservation ordinance for Bay St. Louis — and a change in the local political landscape.

Preservationists Charles Gray and Jim Henrie urged City Council to move ahead with an ordinance to establish some control over what happens to historic properties, and to guide development in parts of town.

In an unrelated development later in the same meeting, at-large council member William "Bill" Taylor demanded that council tackle the task of re-drawing ward lines so the five council members will represent equal numbers of citizens. The 2000 Census found wards 3 and 4 seriously out-of-whack numerically.

Hundreds of hours of behind-the-scenes work have been done in pursuit of a preservation/zoning system for the city. Six years have passed since a panel of citizens was appointed to draft proposed regulations that would safeguard the fate of Bay St. Louis' considerable stock of historic structures.

"We worked, literally, a year" on the proposal, said Henrie, incumbent president of the Historical Society of Hancock County. After a draft ordinance was presented to the city by the panel of citizens, another group was appointed to go over its details and make recommendations to the city.

Later, the city asked the group to mesh the pending regulations with those recommended by state historic preservation officials. Henrie said that was done too — easily, because the local proposal and the state's recommendations were drafted "from the same book."

"A reasonable person would have to conclude, in light of the time and energy that went into it, now is the time to move forward." He and Gray, who's the society's executive director, repeatedly offered any assistance the city needs to proceed. They said perhaps the city could put a trial version of the ordinance into effect, then fine tune it as needed later.

Among other things, the proposal is controversial because it would give a commission of citizens authority to block demolitions of certain historic properties, oversee renovations and restorations, and govern the architecture of new buildings in historic districts.

Henrie said he understands the sensitive nature of such regulations, and council's "very legitimate concerns" over how the system would work. Still, he said, some regulations are called for. "Give us something in place...as a beginning."

Passage may be a tough nut to crack. Gray pushed council to give him some idea of their own positions, and he got some strong feedback.

Ward 1 council member Doug Seal said the hardest part of his public role is governing what people may or may not do with their own properties.

He insisted that participation in any historic regulations should be voluntary, not mandatory.

Gray countered that a voluntary system would be ineffective. And he reminded council that they already govern such things as whether protected trees can be chopped down. The building code has thousands of regulations over properties, he said.

Only one council member sprang to defend the proposed regulatory system, Ward 2 council member James "Jim" Thriffley III. He said the majority of citizens "understand the economic impact" of protecting the historic assets of Bay St. Louis. "I can't tell you what this is going to mean to us economically," he said. Thriffley's district encompasses much of the downtown historic residential area.

Taylor, meanwhile, said the city needs to hold a public workshop devoted solely to the issue. "Let's see what we could work out," he said.

The workshop was set, tentatively, for June 11, 5:30 p.m., at the city Depot.

It was Taylor who led the charge in the re-districting matter. He has raised the matter repeatedly in recent months, but there has been no visible progress.

Municipal elections will occur in two years, he noted. "And we're not doing anything on redistricting." Favre insisted that staff work has been done, but agreed that the re-mapping process is overdue. Once the city agrees on new ward lines, the map has to be approved by the federal Justice Department — a process that could take months.

As it stands, Census data show that Compretta's Ward 4 has almost twice as many residents as Favre's adjoining Ward 3.

With a citywide population of some 8,200 residents, ideally, each of the four wards would have around 2,052 residents, officials say.

Ward 4 is the overwhelming-white southwestern portion of the city, with almost 2,600 residents — that's 26.4 percent over the norm.

Ward 3, lying almost in the middle of the city limits, is predominately black. It has only 1,400 residents — almost 32 percent less than the norm. Wards 1 and 2 are overwhelming white, with populations of 2,323 and 1,892, respectively. Their respective variances are much less: 13.2 percent and -7.7 percent, respectively.

Angelina to perform at OLG 'May Crowning' ceremony

BY BENNIE
SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Our Lady of the Gulf Church will be holding its traditional "May Crowning" ceremony on Friday, May 2 at 7 p.m. The ceremony, with devotions by Father Chris, will be in conjunction with the monthly Peace Rosary that is held at the church each first Friday of the month.

Special musical guest Angelina Davis will perform a special vocal tribute to Our Lady, accompanied by pianist, Alana Rutledge. Fourteen year old Angelina is one of the foremost contemporary Christian singers and recording artists in the South.

Angelina lives with her family in Gulfport, and attends St. John the Evangelist Church where she acts as cantor of the church choir. Angelina's parents, Jim and Maria, noticed her affinity for music when she was just a toddler. She began formal voice lessons when she was nine years old.

At present Angelina has completed the recordings of three CD's, Angelina Prays the Rosary, Wake Up Call, and her latest The Chaplet of Divine Mercy. She considers her talent to be a gift from God and music to be one of God's most beautiful creations, she says.

The month of May, or Mary's month, is traditionally dedicated to Mary in many cultures and May is considered to the symbolic season for the beginning of new life. May celebrations date back to ancient times and most are symbolic of expelling winter and the beginning of growth.

There are many ways to celebrate Mary month, the only requirement being that Mary be honored in some special way. The ceremony on Friday will include a crowning of a statue of Mary with a wreath of blossoms. The blossoms symbolize Mary's virtues, and encourage the public to follow suit.

Everyone attending the ceremony is encouraged to bring an offering of a fresh flower to be placed on the alter as a traditional offering to Mary.

As always, a special book will be available before the service so that family or friends may enter the names of loved ones serving in the armed forces.

Let's cook some beans!

The awaited American Cancer Society's Beans & Rice Cook-Off will be held Monday, April 28, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Casino Magic's Entertainment Complex.

An elated Bay Mayor Eddie Favre, Cook-Off general chairman, reports there will be a record number of entrants this year. He is expecting 50 competitors.

This is always a great fun day for the participants, as well as the general public, and it helps a very good cause.

There are very few families who have not had a family member or close friend with some cancer-related illness.

Tickets for the general public are $6 each and will be available at the door to the Entertainment Complex.

Entry will be through Casino Magic and folks with children will be escorted through the casino to the Entertainment Complex, Favre reports.

At the end of Wednesday night's roundup meeting, Favre was already talking about ways to enhance next year's event.

Another aspect of the fund raiser is that there will also be a silent auction.

Marilyn Finch, the auction chairwoman, reports there will be a large number of assorted items up for grabs at the auction.

Bay Fire Chief Robert Gavagnie, who is vice-chairman of the Cook-Off, reported the layout for the competitors, etc. was all taken care of and tremendous support was being received from Casino Magic.

JoAnn Lagasse, Retired Senior Volunteer Program executive director, said she has several RSVP volunteers who will be helping at the Cook-Off.

Margaret Hadden, judges chairwoman, said judges for the bean contests and cornbread contests were already selected and ready.

Sandra Hoda, from the Hancock County Tax Assessor/Collector's office, reported that she, along with Mayor Favre, Barbara Redding, the mayor's secretary, Judge Ricky and Tanna Adam had been busy signing up cooks who "can really cook red beans."

By the way, Waveland Market Center and Diamondhead Supermarket will once again be providing that delicious bread pudding and slaw.

I hope to see you at the Cook-Off on Monday, red beans day.

For only six dollars you can get all the beans and rice you can eat.

I cannot recall a Saturday having so many events in our area, as there were on April 26.

A Bay St. Louis and a Waveland Salute to Troops gatherings, two ball season openings, a Coleman Avenue cleanup, Crawfish Boil, Christmas in April, etc.

Most importantly is the fact that every one of the events which happened yesterday are very important to our community. It was not possible for folks to attend as many things as they would have liked to.

Yesterday really shows the need for a Community Calendar, which the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is trying to compile.

The only way for a Community Calendar to be successful is for everyone scheduling events to report their dates and times to the chamber. Possibly there will not be as many conflicts as we have at times, such as was yesterday.

Credibility matters, for people and nations

Credibility matters, and some people and even some nations have more credibility than others.

Operation Iraqi Freedom shows that some nations and people are willing to do what they say: fight terrorists, defend freedom and eliminate threats to democracy, while others are not quite so willing. America and her coalition allies' credibility matters greatly as a free, democratic Iraq takes shape.

Our military plan in Iraq is obviously working, lending credibility to our military and its leaders. Our forces are moving about Baghdad. Our troops are being welcomed by the Iraqi people.

There have not been massive civilian or coalition casualties. We are discovering what appears to be evidence of Iraq's weapons of mass destruction program. Coalition forces prevented mass oil fires in Iraq. Saddam was prevented from attacking Israel, and his ties to terrorism have been confirmed. We are even getting new information about how Saddam intentionally fooled the UN for 12 years.

Mind you, these are all things that the French, the Russians, the Germans, the UN, anti-war demonstrators, the liberal press and even a small few in the U.S. Congress said would not happen - but they are happening, underscoring America's credibility. Yet, it means more than just some folks were wrong and some folks were right. More importantly, credibility should determine who plays a role in the new democratic Iraq. America, Britain, Spain and our new friends in Eastern Europe were among the right, among those gaining credibility because we knew Saddam indeed was a dictator, murderer, torturer and terrorist who had to go. Therefore, the new Iraq should be not only free of Saddam, but also free of those people and nations who hurt their credibility by enabling and encouraging Saddam's regime.

The U.S. has the long-standing credibility to create a free, democratic Iraq. We did it in Japan and Europe after World War II. We did it in Kosovo, and we are doing it in Afghanistan today. The UN's credibility in this regard is almost nonexistent. Would the Iraqi people be on the brink of freedom today if Hans Blix

Who cares for the children?

Who is caring for the children? As Iraq is bombed, as Bin Laden is sought, as the planes crashed and the towers fell, as the students ran at Columbine, as Oklahoma City exploded, who is caring for the children? As this nation and the world are robbed of its sense of safety, who is caring for the children?

In an article published in the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology in December 2000, Jean M. Twenge examines whether anxiety has increased in children and young adults from the 1950's to the 1990's. Dr. Twenge concluded that anxiety has substantially increased since the 1950's. In fact the "average American child in the 1980's reported more anxiety than child psychiatric patients in the 1950's" (Twenge 2000).

According to Dr. Twenge's study the increased anxiety experienced by children and young adults can be attributed to a loss of social connectedness and increases in the threat of environmental dangers. Since the conclusion of Dr. Twenge's study in 1993, social connectedness has continued to decrease and threats of unimaginable environmental dangers have become reality. A 1992 report estimated that 3.3 to 10 million chil-the Twin Towers and the war with Iraq.

Children's increased anxiety strongly reflects what is happening in the society at large (Twenge 2000). The large-scale disastrous events of just the past 10 years has turned the world into an extremely dangerous environment where the children have no quiet place to grow and learn. The harrowing images the nightly news broadcast are being imprinted on our children's expanding minds. The anxiety felt by these children today becomes a wide variety of physical ailments, impaired cognitive performance, a predisposition to marital problems and likely alcohol and drug abuse.

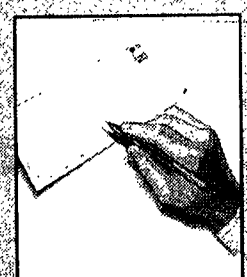

And it is not just the large-scale disasters that are creating an explosive world for our children. According to the National Institute of Mental Health, each year many children and adolescents sustain injuries from violence, lose friends or family members, or are adversely affected by witnessing a violent act. The impact of a traumatic event is likely to be greatest in the child or adolescent who previously has been the victim of child abuse or some other form of trauma.

A 1992 report estimated that 3.3 to 10 million chil-

Wolfe, Wekerle, Reitsel and Gough in 1995's "Strategies to Address Violence in the Lives of High Risk Youth" stated that children who witness domestic violence are more likely to exhibit behavioral and physical health problems including depression, anxiety, and violence towards peers. They are also more likely to attempt suicide, abuse drugs and alcohol, run away from home, engage in teenage prostitution, and commit sexual assault crimes.

home, at school, in the neighborhood, city or country where our children are trying to grow and to learn is leading to emotional harm. Our children are exposed to violence in the course of everyday life, if only through graphic media reports and should be watched for signs of emotional distress. So what can we do? How can we care for the children?

First, parents, teachers, and the communities should find ways to protect children from further harm and from further exposure to traumatic events. Once the children are protected, explain the episode or event as well as you are able. Encourage the children to express their feelings and were still "inspecting?" Of course not, and as a new Iraq is created the coalition and the Iraqi people should be the architects. The French and German governments especially - along with French and German companies - should stand aside. Instead of becoming a part of the solution, they became part of the problem. Their credibility has been diminished by their choice. They chose not to help liberate Iraq. They stood by their long history of supporting Saddam, by selling him lots of weapons and even building him bunkers. They denied the threat posed by Saddam and sought appeasement. Therefore, French, German and Russian interests should have no part in building the new Iraq. America, Britain, Australia, Spain and all nations contributing to and supporting operation Iraqi Freedom should help Iraq's capable people build a better nation - an Iraq that will be democratic, and especially a good friend to those who helped liberate it.

As President Bush said, America will stay in Iraq no longer than it takes for a new democratic Iraqi government to emerge and begin functioning, but we will stay as long as necessary to ensure security and establish general order. During this time the UN's role should be relegated to handling a portion of the humanitarian relief effort in Iraq. Distribution of foodstuffs and medical supplies seems to be one area where the UN actually excels. After more than a decade of failing to enforce its own disarmament resolutions regarding Saddam Hussein's Iraq, the UN's credibility in peacekeeping is severely hurt. The UN should not, and most likely could not, administer a new Iraq.

Our military men and women have proved their credibility as the best disarmament plan for Saddam's Iraq, accomplishing amazing military feats that will be long remembered in the annals of history - especially in the new free Iraq, soon to materialize. The decisive action by America, Britain and other nations to eliminate Saddam's reign of terror and deny him weapons of mass destruction was the right one. The result: America and her coalition allies gain more credibility and respect while Saddam's apologists and the "blame-Americafirst" crowd lose some. Folks throughout the world - good guys and bad guys alike - are noting which nations are credible, which nations are willing to back up words with action, to fight terrorists, to fight for freedom and to deliver on their promises. Yes, credibility matters, and right now America and the coalition of the willing have much more credibility than the nay sayers who propped up a tyrannical, and now terminal Iraqi dictatorship.

listen without passing judgment. But don't pressure the child to talk, some children are unable to express their feelings with words and others are not ready to discuss the event or their feelings right away. Encourage children to develop coping and problem solving skills and age appropriate methods for managing anxiety. If you or your child needs assistance in coping or managing anxiety contact a mental health professional.

Mental health professionals may be found at your child's school or with the local mental health agency. Your family physician could refer you to an appropriate counselor. Some areas have specialized counselors for children and adults dealing with traumatic events, especially domestic violence and sexual assault. Contact your local women's shelter for more information. On the Mississippi Gulf Coast contact the Gulf Coast Women's Center for Nonviolence for counseling for domestic violence and sexual assault victims. The "Women's Center" also provides a therapeutic pre-school for children ages 3-5 who have witnessed domestic violence, been victims of sexual assault or are at risk because of drug and alcohol abuse in the home. Contact the Gulf Coast Women's Center for Nonviolence for more information at 228 436-3809.

Another resource for more information regarding children, trauma and treatment is a one day conference sponsored by the Gulf Coast Women's Center for Nonviolence for mental health professionals, social workers, teachers, child care providers and others interested in securing our children's quiet place to grow and learn. "A Quiet Place - Caring for Children in an Explosive World" is scheduled for May 16, 2003 8:00-4:30 at the Isle of Capri Casino and Hotel in Biloxi, MS. For more information or to receive a brochure of scheduled speakers please contact the Gulf Coast Women's Center for Nonviolence at 228 436-3809.

to $261,343 in March.

And sales tax revenues were up as well: $105,123 for March, compared with $97,675 in February.

Even as council members were rejoicing at those good numbers, they were more somber to learn that the $200,000 they had hoped to get from state Tidelands Trust funds had been slashed to a mere $50,000 by the Legislature. Mayor Eddie Favre said he was befuddled by how that cut happened, and he assured council he would work with the Department of Marine Resources to try to up the number.

"It's not a good situation," said the mayor. "... We got the short end of the stick."

City officials have $400,000 bankrolled in Tidelands Trust funds, from prior year appropriations. They had hoped for another $200,000 this year, and planned to apply the entire sum to upgrading facilities at the Jimmy Rutherford pier. In fact, the city already has commissioned an engineering study on costs to build a beachfront parking lot on stilts near the pier.

The study also will look at the feasibility of adding fishing "fingers" on the pier.

Tidelands money is state revenue from leases, of waterfront bottomlands to casinos and other government authorities. It is earmarked solely for waterfront recreational purposes. Favre said although the Legislature doles out most of the money for specific projects, the DMR has some "discretionary" money to award.

At-large council member William "Bill" Taylor said Tuesday the city should find out who's responsible for slashing the city's expected appropriation, and publicize that news.

The engineering study by Brown & Mitchell is due in council's hands May 5.

Meanwhile, Favre plans to discuss the city's overall financial picture in a special meeting April 30. His mid-year budget review is expected to cover any significant variances from the city's annual budget so far, and shift resources as needed.

In other matters

Tuesday, council:

• Heard a briefing on the $4 million federally financed study of relocating the CSX rail line. Senior planner James D. Wilkinson said the project would cost between $1.8 and $2.4 billion, and take 15 to 20 years to accomplish.

"When you come back and it's done, there'll be a different bunch of guys at this table," said Taylor.

• Awarded $1,500 to the contractor who demolished 203 Citizen St. After more than 12 years' contention over the fate of the dilapidated structure, the house came down on Palm Sunday.

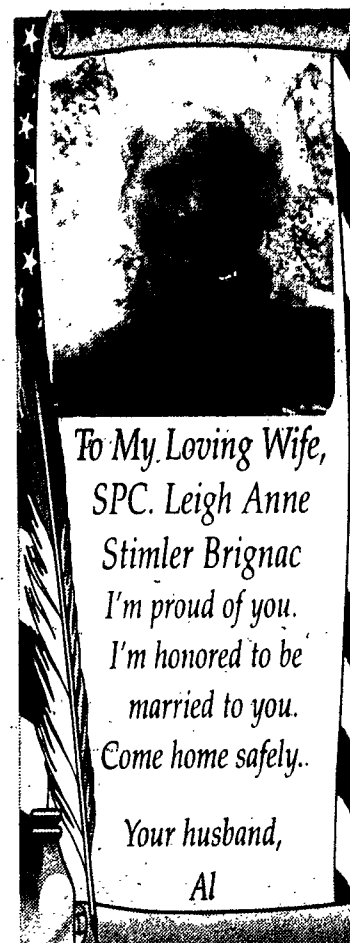

• Favre said the city incurred additional costs beyond the demolition, which should be charged to its owner, Chris Legarde. For instance, the city had to hire a wrecker to move a vehicle that blocked access to the house, and extra police had to be on the scene while the demolition was in progress.

• Went into closed session to hear a report from annexation consultant Mike Slaughter.

For months, Slaughter's firm has been studying the pros and cons of expanding the city limits. But to date, all information about the study's progress and results has been aired behind closed doors.

• Favre said there will be public discussion of the matter soon — perhaps during the special session on April 30.

Hancock County Board of Supervisors, Linea Peninsular, Inc., Mississippi Power Company, NASA — John C. Stennis Space Center, Prestige Printing and The Sun Herald.

Compretta, 34-year-old owner of Patient's Choice medical supply company, served last year as the chamber's president; and for about five months as acting executive director.

He was one of 10 people named "Outstanding Citizens" by the chamber. The nominees also included:

• Valerie Edenfield — Hope Haven Children's Shelter;

• Ethel Favre — Community Volunteer;

• Hancock County Volunteer Fire Fighters;

• John "JJ" Jagunich, Casino Magic Bay St. Louis;

• Ronald G. Magee — National Aeronautics and Space Administration;

• Olive T. McKenna — Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District;

• Kathy Pinn — That Cute Little Shoppe;

• Prima Plaque — Hancock County Library System;

• Jon E. Ritten — Coldwell Banker.

Port and Harbor Director Hal Walters also presented the Industry of the Year Award to Dr. Robert Gagne of Mississippi Polymer Technologies and Award of Excellence to Capt. David Humphreys of Linea Peninsular Inc.

William R. "Bill" Lady, owner of Waveland Holiday Inn, received the first Tourism Person of the Year award, for his outstanding contributions to Hancock County tourism industry, including being one of the driving forces behind the creation of the county's tourism bureau.

Also at the gala, the county's Businesses of the Year were named, including:

• Bay St. Louis — Coast Electric Power Association;

• Diamondhead — Jackie O's Café;

• Kiln — Hancock Plaza;

• Waveland — Charlie Henderson Ford.

Tish Williams, Hancock Chamber director and manager of the gala for the sponsoring agencies, said the event was "a sell-out," and that "the response to this important event has been inspiring. For the first time, Hancock County is bringing small business together with big business, local and state government together with federal government, and the tourism industry together with the industrial sector for one common goal: To recognize the men and women of Hancock County who are making a difference for our area. ... When people get together, great things happen."

E-bay -- recovered

case was conducted with no leads until on Wednesday when the sheriff's department received a telephone call from the product's manufacturer, as the analyzer was still under development.

"They reported it was located by them as an item for sale on E-Bay, Chief Investigator Bob Lambert said.

"We were told by the manufacturer they had bid on the analyzer earlier last week, which was being offered by a Gulfport Pawn Shop which already had a bid from an individual in New York," Lambert said.

"The manufacturer's bid was over-bid and the pawn shop told them the analyzer was in route to the purchaser in New York. I was able to contact the shipping company to have the delivery stopped. I was contacted Friday morning and was told the package was located before delivery. It will be returned to our department," Lambert said.

"The investigation continues, as we have contacted the pawn shop and have made contact with the person who sold it to them. The party told us he purchased it from two others, whom we are now seeking."

Lambert did say the Gulfport pawn shop owner has been cooperating with the sheriff's department.

In the initial report on the theft of the analyzer, its value was placed at $5,800.

In addition to Lambert, Hancock Investigators Burt Johnson and John Luther are involved in the continuing investigation.

Stasny -- finalist

Stasny had not notified the board of her application for the Vicksburg job. "We would certainly expect her to fulfill her contract through June 30, 2004," Flowers said.

Stasny was apparently one of nine applicants and one of three finalists for the position, according to an April 23 story in the Vicksburg Post. A public meeting with the three finalists is set for May 16, and final interviews will be held in private the next day.

The other two finalists, Dr. James Price and Agnes Lyles, are already employed in the 9,000-student Vicksburg Warren School District, which was created when city and county school systems merged in 1986. Price is the district's administrative assistant to the superintendent; Lyles, the assistant superintendent.

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District Board of Trustees named

Stasny, a resident of Diamondhead and a Laurel native, as the district's chief administrator in July 1999. She had been working as the school system's acting superintendent after Dr. Mike Reed retired.

She worked as an educator in the Lumberton, Simpson County, Laurel and Hancock County school districts before coming to the Bay-Waveland district.

Louisiana sex offense suspect nabbed in Bay

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

A suspect at a Bay St. Louis residence, was nabbed by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department for four outstanding warrants in neighboring Louisiana, Sheriff Steve Garber reports.

Chief Investigator Bob Lambert said, "Steven A. Morris, 31, was arrested around 2:30 p.m. Thursday, following a Pawn Shop record keeping file check by Investigator Burt Johnson. He was wanted by the Pearl River, and Covington, LA Police departments and was located at 121 Ballentine St., Bay St. Louis."

"Pearl River had an outstanding warrant for Morris' failure to register as a sex offender and one for failure to appear in court. His address on those two warrants was 39053 Haas Road, Pearl River, LA," Lambert said.

Lambert continued, "The address on the two warrants for Covington Police had the 121 Ballentine St. address.

One was for simple criminal damage to property and the other for theft."

Morris is being held in the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility without bond awaiting extradition to Louisiana, Lambert reported.

Red Beans & Rice Cook-off is Monday

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

Publisher Emeritus

The annual American Cancer Society's Red Beans and Rice Cook-Off is set for 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., Monday, April 28, at Casino Magic's Entertainment Complex.

Competition will be hot tomorrow in the restaurant division, as 12 competitors will be after top honors Cook-Off honors, Bay Mayor Eddie Favre, chairman reported Friday evening.

"This year we set a goal of 50 entries combined in the five divisions and as of now have 48," a beaming Favre said.

Last year there was a total of 31 entries and only had two in the restaurant division. This year's total includes and even dozen competing for top honors for restaurants.

Bay St. Louis Fire Chief Robert Gavagnie is vice-chairman and along with Mayor Favre and several others have worked very hard in recent weeks for the annual fund raiser for the Cancer Society.

"This is really a fun-filled fund raiser for all the participants, as well as the general public and the benefactor is the American Cancer Society," Favre emphasized.

Entry to the Casino Magic's Entertainment Complex will be through the casino, Favre said, adding, "Children will be escorted to the Entertainment Complex."

An entry fee is $6 for the general public and they can eat all the beans and rice they want.

The general public also plays an important role in the Cook-Off, as they have the opportunity of voting for the Peoples Choice Awards in each division.

In addition to the Peoples Choice awards, a special selection of Judges will select the winners in each category. Top honor will be the Golden Bean award and the Camellia Bean award for the most Creative Beans. There are many trophies to be awarded.

There is also a special corn bread category for the Best Corn Bread.

The reason for the move from the Hancock County Civic Center was because the facility has been outgrown by the event. "There was no way we could handle four dozen competitors at the Civic Center," Favre said.

The competition will be in five categories this year, restaurants, government, organizations, businesses and families. The family division has been added this year.

Today, tonight and tomorrow morning large pots of beans will be brewing throughout the county.

Camellia red bean's distributor has supplied the red beans and the contestants provide the rice and special seasonings and ingredients. Many claim they use family recipes handed down for generations.

In addition to the Cook-Off there will also be a silent auction.

The entries in the Cook-Off through Friday evening are; Tom Burleson for Sheriff, Relay-For-Life, Prudential-Gardner, Ashman-Mollere, Coast Electric, Jackie O's Rest., Hancock County Republican Party, Latter & Blum, DuPont, Coast Windshield, Calgon/Carbon, Broke Spoke, Hancock County Exchange Club, Dirk Dedeaux, Diamondhead Supermarket, Judges Ricky Adam and Tommy Carver, and NASA Exchange.

Others are; City of Bay St. Louis, City of Waveland, Hancock County Sheriff's Office, Hancock County Board of Supervisors, Jimmie Ladner, Jr., Favre's on The Bayou, R.S.V.P. Gene Taylor, Hancock Bank, Whitney Bank, Casino Magic, Bayou Roux Rest., Dan B's Rest., Lil Ray's Rest., Daddy O's Rest., Bay City Grill Rest., Southern Delight Rest., Tgres Rest., and Acadian Grill Rest.

Included are, Port and Harbor, Court Street Station Rest., American Medical Response, Acadian Ambulance Service, U.S.M. Gulf Coast, U.S.M.

Hattiesburg, Dempsey's Rest., O'Neal's Rest., G.E. Plastics, Coconuts Bar & Grill, Bourgeois/Aderer and Mississippi Power.

Judges for the Bean Cook-Off include, Rear Admiral Thomas Donaldson, USN; District Attorney Cono Corona; Mrs. Leo Seal, Jr.; Prima Plaque, and Linda Cook.

Corn Bread judges include, Darlene Underwood, Lynn Bell and Ellis C. Cuevas.

Among the original organizers of the first few cook-offs were Janet McQueen, Anne Schmidt Andry and Basil Kennedy. McQueen and Andry were chairwomen of the event for several years. Last year's chairman was Jimmie Ladner, Jr.

Peoples Financial earnings increase

Peoples Financial Corporation (NASDAQ Small Cap: PFBX), parent of The Peoples Bank, reported first quarter 2003 net income increased to $1,037,000, up 55.5% over the same period last year.

Earnings per share rose to $.19, a 58.3% increase over the first quarter 2002. Per-share earnings are based on 5,569,913 weighted average common shares for the quarter, compared to 5,621,390 for first quarter 2002.

"Despite a troubled national economy and the disruption of a war overseas, Peoples Financial Corporation, posted a solid first quarter in 2003," said Chevis C. Swetman, chairman and CEO of Peoples Financial Corporation. "The increase in our earnings is primarily the result of expansion in our net interest margin. We have concentrated on aggressively pricing loans and repricing deposits to bring our margins back to acceptable levels. I am pleased to report that those policies are now showing positive results on our bottom line," he said.

Net interest income rose for the fifth consecutive quarter, reaching $4,700,000, an increase of 9.3% over the same period last year and the highest since the second quarter of 2001.

Merry Maids celebrates anniversary

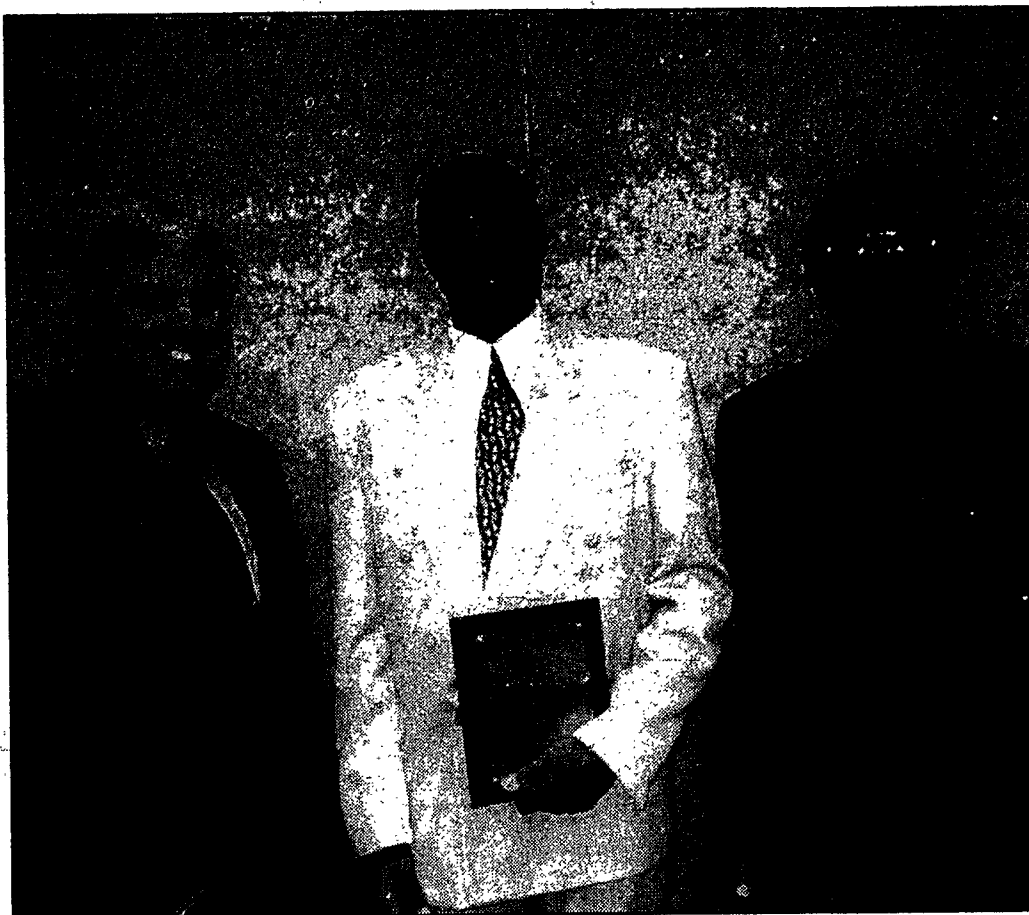

More than 3,900 toilets and more than 2,000,000 square feet of carpet later, Melinda Norwood, owner of the local Merry Maids, can truly say she's helped clean up the North Shore area.

When Melinda opened her Merry Maids office just over one year ago, she had no idea where the business would take her. According to Melinda, with God's blessings and the ever-growing number of women in the workforce has helped make Merry Maids a successful business.

Over the last year, Melinda has had an opportunity to provide a family atmosphere for her employees. Currently, Melinda has eight team members who clean about 80 homes per week. Four of her employees have been with her for a year each.

Providing great customer service has paid off for Melinda as well. "We have about 100 customers who have used our service almost as long as we've been open," said Melinda. "Word of mouth is where we're getting most of our new customers. For more information on residential cleaning, visit the Merry Maids Web site at www.formerrymaids.com/la/1090 or call 985-641-0008.

California bans sale of warm-weather oysters from the Gulf of Mexico

BY LAURA WIDES
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — State officials filed an emergency ban this week on the sale of raw oysters harvested during warm months along the Gulf Coast due to concerns about contamination.

The Department of Health Services said oysters harvested in Louisiana, Texas, Florida, Mississippi and Alabama during that time may contain the bacteria Vibrio vulnificus, which can lead to severe illness and death.

Officials said they hoped the move would encourage changes throughout the Gulf Coast oyster industry.

"We hope to spur the industry," said Jim Waddell, head of DHS' food and drug division. "There are already several effective means to treat the product after it's harvested."

The ban, which became effective Monday, prevents California retailers, distributors, and wholesalers from accepting Gulf Coast oysters harvested between April and October, unless they have been processed to eliminate the bacteria.

Health officials said they would not enforce the ban until May to give companies time to comply.

Officials from the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources say the ban will unfairly damage consumer confidence.

"A key point though is that there are no cases on record of Mississippi oysters ever causing a Vibrio vulnificus illness," said Lauren Thompson, a spokeswoman for the Mississippi DMR.

Louisiana Gov. Mike Foster urged California to reconsider.

The action would stop the shipment of over 500,000 pounds of raw oysters to the state and could cost Louisiana nearly $20 million annually and perhaps as many as 150 jobs.

Meanwhile, Louisiana health official say the risks of the oyster-related illness have been overblown.

Waddell disagreed. According to DHS, since 1983, 75 Vibrio bacteria infections have been reported to state health officials, including 45 that resulted in death, he said.

In cases where the source of the oysters could be identified, the source was the Gulf Coast, Waddell said.

The infection can cause fever, chills and abdominal pain, generally within 24 hours of eating contaminated shellfish.

Those with chronic liver disease are especially vulnerable to the infection, which can lead to lesions and a loss of skin in the extremities, officials said. Others at higher risk include those with cancer, AIDS or other conditions that weaken the immune system.

The ban won praise from the Washington D.C.-based nonprofit Center for Science in the Public Interest, which has long urged the Food and Drug Administration to require such oysters to be processed to kill the bacteria.

"California officials have done what the FDA should have done long ago," said CSPI food safety director Caroline Smith DeWaal.

About 25 percent of California's oysters come from the Gulf Coast.

Mississippi still losing jobs

BY BARBARA POWELL
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The outlook for manufacturing in Mississippi remains cloudy as the state continues to lose jobs in that sector.

But Mississippi isn't suffering alone. Manufacturing nationwide has also slumped in the weak economy.

Economists and industry watchers also expect 2003 to continue to be tough for manufacturing, only beginning to show improvement the last half of the year and only in certain sectors.

"I think it's only going to be the heavy industries, like metal manufacturing or shipyards, that will see improvement the second half of the year — the durable goods," said Rajeev Dhawan, director of the economic forecasting center at Robinson College of Business at Georgia State University.

There's good news in that pronouncement for Mississippi, home to Northrop Grumman Ship Systems and the new $1.43 billion Nissan assembly plant that will open May 27 in Canton.

Northrop Grumman, with the help of a $48 million bond issue by the state, is expanding its Gulf Coast shipyards and may add as many as 2,000 jobs as it develops prototypes for the next generation of military destroyers.

Nissan North America Inc. will add 5,300 jobs to the state work force by May 2004 when the Canton plant reaches full production. The two dozen suppliers who have moved into the state to serve the plant are adding as many as 3,000 more jobs.

But nobody thinks that manufacturing as a sector has come back full strength.

U.S. manufacturing employment, after peaking at 18.5 million in July 2000, according to the National Association of Manufacturers, has fallen by 2.2 million over 32 consecutive months, to 16.4 million.

In Mississippi, even as the Nissan plant adds workers at the pace of 200 a month, other Mississippi manufacturers are shutting their doors either permanently or temporarily and laying off workers.

A record number of manufacturers, 103, left the state last year, taking more than 10,000 jobs with them, according to the Mississippi Manufacturers Association.

This year has brought more bad news: International Paper's Natchez mill is closing, taking away 640 jobs. Then in February, the state lost 900 manufacturing jobs.

Three area student-athletes were honored by the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame on Wednesday, April 23, at their 35th annual banquet held in the Palace Casino in Biloxi.

Jake Pearce of Bay High, Charles Steven Guidos of Hancock, and Matthew Scarborough of Pass Christian were all named scholar-athletes by the foundation.

The National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame Gulf Coast Chapter is comprised mainly of high school football coaches, administrators, and supporters. It seeks to recognize the outstanding student athletes for their accomplishments on the football field, in the classroom, and in the community.

Jake Pearce, a senior at Bay High, has a 94.6% average in high school and has scored a 28 on the ACT. Pearce has been a four-year letter winner in football which he was named to the All-Division 8 Class 4A team in 2002. He was also named to the All-Sea Coast Echo team.

Other campus activities are Beta Club, National Honor Society, Honor Roll, DECA, Youth Legislature, varsity soccer, varsity baseball, and varsity track. His anticipated field of study is engineering.

Charles Steven Guidos is a senior at Hancock High School. He maintains a 3.92 GPA on a 4.0 scale and has scored a 21 on the ACT. Currently, Guidos is ranked 16th in his senior class. He is a four-year letter winner at defensive end and offensive line for the Hawks. He received the Coach's Award for his accomplishments in football and was named to the All-Region 3-5A team.

In the classroom, Guidos has achieved the Principal's List and the Superintendent's List while participating in National Honor Society, National Vocational/Technical Society, French Honor Society, and Future Business Leaders of America. His anticipated field of study is international trade and finance.

Matthew Scarborough is a senior at Pass Christian High School. He maintains a 3.75 GPA on a 4.0 scale and scored a 25 on the ACT. Scarborough was named to the All-Division 8 Class 4A team, the All-Sea Coast Echo team, and won the Pirate Award for Dedication. He has been named the Gulfport Exchange Club Student of the Month and has been active in varsity baseball, Beta Club, and is listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students. Scarborough's anticipated field of study is mathematics.

Other special awards were handed out at the banquet. The Rocky Byrd Quarterback Award was presented to Harrison Central's Derrick Eldridge. Eldridge completed 121 passes in 232 attempts for 1,708 yards and 20 TDs. He also had six rushing touchdowns on the season. Derrick plans to attend Millsaps College to play football and study accounting.

The Frank "Twig" Branch Coaches Award was merited by D'Iberville's Louis Smith. In Smith's first year as head coach, he led the Warriors to their first ever state 4A football title. Prior to this past season, he had been a junior high coach for 23 seasons. He was named the Coach of the Year in Class 4A by the Mississippi Association of Coaches. He has a bachelor's degree from USM and a master's degree from William Carey College. Smith has also coached basketball, baseball, cross country and track.

The Assistant Coach of the Year award was presented to St. John assistant Joey Waites. A Bay Springs native, Waites has been a head coach for one season at D'Iberville before rejoining his longtime coaching friend, Buddy Singleton at St. John. Waites has been Singleton's top assistant since 1978.

The Award of Merit was presented to Carl Shepard. Shepard was inducted into the MAC Hall of Fame in 1999 and in 2001 was named Professor of the Year by William Carey College. A tenured veteran of the coaching ranks, Shepard has served as MHSAA District 8 secretary for the past 20 years.

Dr. Jeff Noblin, an orthopedic specialist, was picked to receive the Contribution to Amateur Football award. Noblin graduated from Jackson Prep before receiving a football scholarship to play for the Ole Miss Rebels in the mid 1980s. During his time in Oxford, Noblin was named to the All-SEC team, the Academic All-SEC team, the Academic All-America team, and was a recipient of the prestigious NCAA Post Graduate Honors Scholarship. Noblin graduated from Ole Miss with a degree in history and minor in chemistry. He went on to the University of Mississippi Medical Center in Jackson where he earned his MD and specialty degree in orthopedics. Noblin makes his home on the Gulf Coast and has consulted for the Kansas City Chiefs organization of the National Football League.

Doug Barber, longtime Coast sportswriter, received the Distinguished American Award. Barber is a graduate of Biloxi High School and earned his bachelor's degree from Tulane University. Later, he earned a master's degree from the University of West Florida. Barber has been the high school sports editor for the Sun Herald newspaper since 1981. Before joining the Herald staff, Barber made stops at the Houma-Thibodeaux Press and the Picayune Item.

Diamondhead resident's patriotic gesture comes home

THE SEA COAST ECHO

After nine months of raising morale of military service members around the world, a patriotic gesture made by Diamondhead resident Marilyn Adams has made its way back to Hancock County.

On April 8, 2003, Rear Admiral Thomas Q. Donaldson V, Commander, Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command, and members of his staff gathered at the command's headquarters at Stennis Space Center to welcome the flag's return and thank Mrs. Adams for her selfless act.

Since July 2002, the flag has been "on deployment" on a goodwill trek to many of the command's nearly 60 activities worldwide.

"Marilyn's flag was made out of respect for our Service men and women involved in Operation Enduring Freedom, but during the past year, it has been a source of pride for many now involved in current operations in Iraq," Rear Admiral Donaldson said.

When Marilyn Adams was a little girl and her father was a lieutenant in the Navy, she spent afternoons in movie theaters watching John Wayne in "The Fighting Seabees" and "The Flying Tigers." She thrilled as she watched Wayne stomp through the Sands of Iwo Jima and slash through Korean jungles with The Green Berets.

Her father's service and those afternoons in the theater left an indelible mark.

"Sometimes the military are forgotten," Mrs. Adams said. "During the current crisis, how could I not think about the military? I thought of those men and women and how much I wanted them to know that I and the rest of America care so much for them."

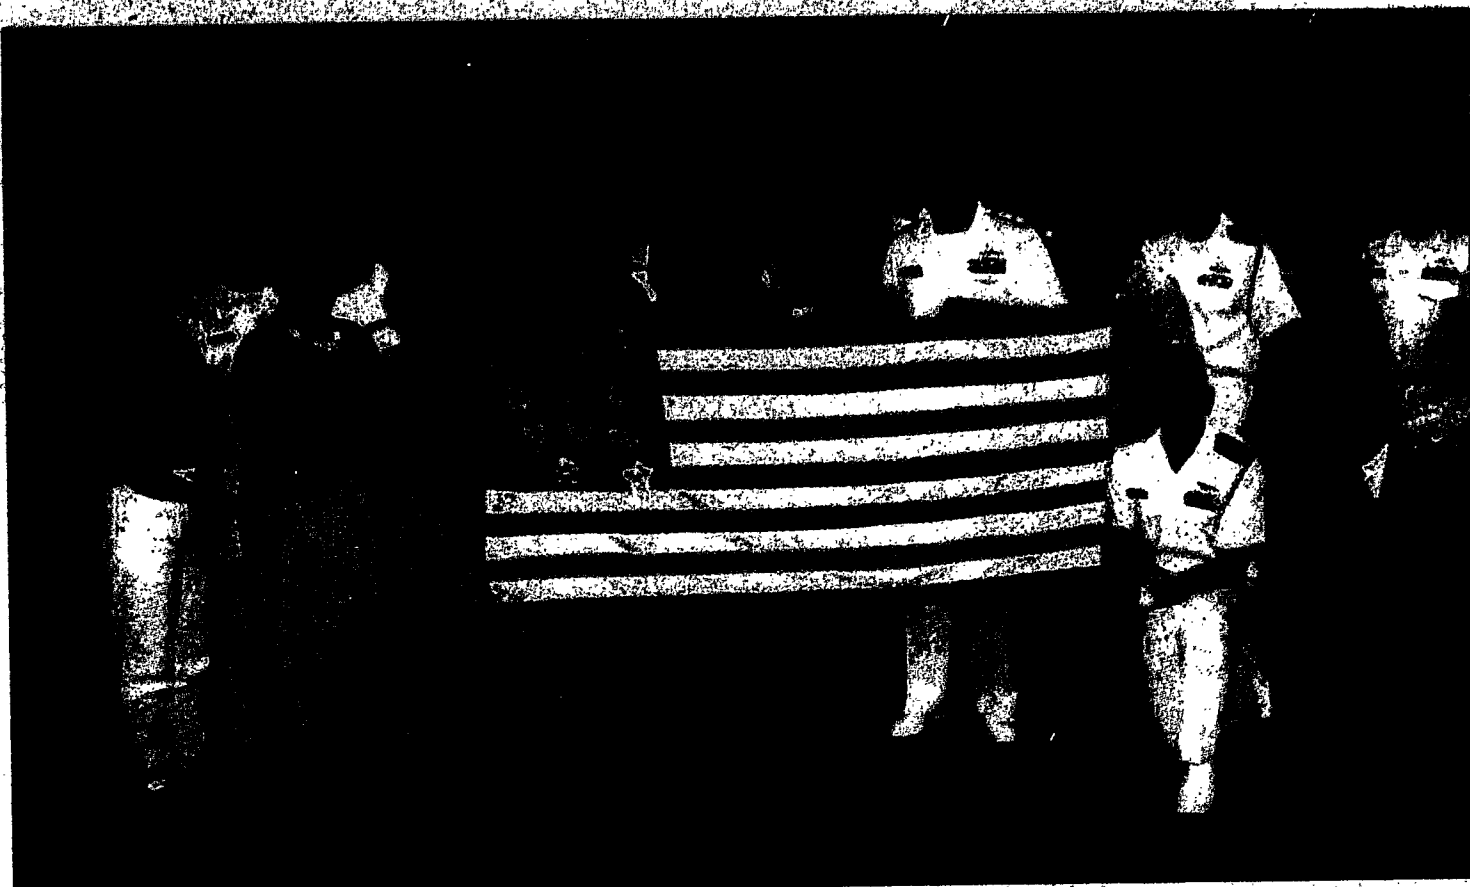

Mrs. Adams serves in a number of civic groups including The Daughters of the American Revolution. This past Christmas, she participated in the Hancock County Library's annual tree decorating competition and draped her tree with the pictures and names of local veterans. The night before the Bay St. Louis Memorial Day parade last May, Mrs. Adams was inspired again.

"I was asked to decorate and drive my car in the parade. I had the idea for the flag," she said.

From 10 p.m. that night to 6 a.m. Memorial Day morning, Mrs. Adams worked on her labor of love. "I made a lot of mistakes, but you know, the Amish always make sure that one block in their quilts is never right because only God is perfect," she laughed.

Rear Admiral Donaldson's car was just behind mine in the parade. I remembered a speech he had given to the Daughters of the American Revolution, and I thought it would be so selfish to keep this flag for myself. I asked him if he would give my flag to his Sailors, take it to other places and let them know how much we honor and respect them."

Impressed with her patriotism and work, Rear Admiral Donaldson sent the flag to his command's activities around the world. The command numbers around 3,000 military and civilian personnel. Their mission is to provide weather, oceanographic and hydrographic information to increase the effectiveness of our Navy in both peacetime and war.

During its tour, Mrs. Adams' flag went to the Middle Eastern country of Bahrain; Pearl Harbor, Hawaii; Yokosuka, Japan; Monterey and San Diego, Calif.; Whidbey Island, Wash.; Washington, D.C.; Norfolk, Va.; and Jacksonville and Pensacola, Fla. Each organization took a picture with the flag and wrote Mrs. Adams a letter of appreciation.

"The flag came at a time when coming to work every day was hard," said AGC Hoffman at the command's center in Bahrain. "Being handmade, it obviously came from the heart, and it's nice to be reminded America is behind us."

Mrs. Adams flag quilt was particularly comforting to members of the Naval Ice Center in Washington, D.C. During the 9/11 terrorist attack on the Pentagon, the center lost two members from their Ice Center Component within the Pentagon, Aerographer's Mate First Class Edward Earhart and Aerographer's Mate Second Class Matthew Flocco.

"We were touched closely by the events of September 11," wrote Commander Steve Warren, commanding officer. "Heartfelt gestures such as yours are comforting and, at the same time, quite motivational. Your gesture signifies the patriotic unity of the country and reminds all of us of why we chose to serve."

Marilyn Adams is thrilled with every letter and picture.

"It means so much to me that my little flag has been where it's been. I can only hope that it said what I wanted it to say," she said.

Rear Admiral Donaldson is sure it has.

"There's a quote about patriotism that says, 'The history of every country begins in the heart of a man or a woman,'" he commented. "Marilyn's flag already has touched the hearts of nearly 40 percent of my organization stationed overseas and will continue to inspire those who serve in uniform. We are grateful for her patriotism and support."

"I'm giving all of this to my granddaughter," Mrs. Adams says as she holds up the pictures and letters from the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command.

The flag is on its way to more command activities in Spain, Italy, Diego Garcia and Iceland. When it returns, it will be made available for display on the Coast.

Back in Time

TEN YEARS AGO

April 15, 1993 - Hancock County Port and Harbor Executive Director Buzz Olsen announced Monday Continental Airline has scheduled its first flight into Stennis International Airport April 17 from Atlanta. "They will start these charter to test us over the next six months. We have conservatively projected 48 flights for the next six months," Olsen said.

Hancock County's seventh annual Salute to Business and Industry will be April 23 at 7 a.m. at the Diamondhead Country Club. The program will mark the 30th anniversary of the port and harbor commission, one of the sponsors of the breakfast program. The event is also sponsored by the board of supervisors and the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

April 14, 1983 - The Pearl River, which crested at 10 feet above sea level at midnight as registered on the gauge at Roy Baxter's Marina, left an aftermath of memories both happy and sad. Weary residents sat in front of the Community Center on Monday afternoon taking a breath or two after a week-end of continuous work bagging sand, loading trucks and distributing polyethylene. They talked about the event that happened during the flood. L.J. Dunaway, a local volunteer, said, "We loaded trucks down and unloaded until we could not load any more."

Canadian Geese Sun themselves (photo). On the lawn of Roy Baxter's Marina in Pearlinton, Canadian geese sun themselves. The geese floated down the Pearl river on Sunday morning and landed at the marina. They came from Frank B. Williams' estate up the river north two miles from the marina. "Williams is very much of a conservationist," said Baxter. "He tries to raise instead of destroy," he said. "They were in a fenced pen when the waters came and they just floated on down," said Baxter.

Ben Christmas, caretaker for the Williams' estate drives over in his pickup truck everyday and feeds them corn. They know he is coming and they get all excited by making honking sounds. "They can't fly, but they sure are beautiful looking when they're swimming," said Baxter.

BY SHANNON JENKINS

Amazing things can happen when someone digs in the dirt and plops a plant in the ground. When several people who don't mind getting their hands dirty come together and carefully plan where to dig and when to plop, things can get downright beautiful.

And, beautiful things are happening in the city of Pass Christian thanks to a group of citizens who have rolled up their sleeves, pulled on some shady hats and slipped on some work gloves.

They're simply known as the Pass Christian Beautification Committee.

These beauty-thirsty committee members include Gwenn Voigts, committee chairperson; Alicia Ellis; Dr. Pat Johnson; Herb Horst; Dee Horst; Ken Austin; Fr. Dennis Carver, St. Paul's Catholic Church; Dr. Tom Drake; Bobby Weaver, director of Harrison County Sand and Beach Authority; Trudy Cook, Harrison County Sand Beach Authority; and Mike Pavlisick, road foreman of Pass Christian Public Works.

Other Enemies, Other Wars

I see they have captured Abul Abbas in Baghdad.

Abbas, you may remember was the Palestinian terrorist that led the hijacking of the cruise liner, Achille Lauro, in 1985 and brutally murdered a crippled old man, pushing his body - still in his wheelchair - off the ship into the sea.

Abbas got away with it. In surrender negotiations with the Egyptians, Abbas and four of the hijackers were flown out of Cairo in a jet that was later intercepted by U.S. Navy fighter planes and forced to land in Sicily. There, the U. S. and Italy argued as to who should have custody of the terrorists. Italy won and somehow Abbas was released. The Italians acknowledged their error and tried him in absentia, sentencing him to life in prison. Abbas made his way to Baghdad and has lived a protected life there ever since.

Now it appears that that is over. It was a long time ago, but I'm glad they got him.

When the hijacking started, I was in Sicily doing ocean research in an area of the eastern Mediterranean just a little bit west of the Achille Lauro. Bob and I had been in the Mediterranean for about a month as part of a several-year study of the movement of waters within the sea. Although what we did was basic research, it had tremendous military applications, and we had full cooperation from the U. S. Sixth Fleet. We had borrowed a Navy Fleet aircraft, a large anti-submarine P3 Orion, for a week and had just flown into the Italian-U. S. Navy base in Sicily when the hijacking began.

Terrorist activities in the Mediterranean had been on the increase and Bob and I had become used to traveling around the Mediterranean countries in a fashion that did not make us stand out as Americans. We were both crudely versatile in Spanish, French and Italian. When I spoke French and Italian, it came out with a heavy Spanish accent. I'm not sure what Bob sounded like but he did not sound like an American.

Our rental cars were always kept unwashed and we usually dressed in faded khaki pants, old tee shirts and dirty sneakers. We both always needed haircuts and my normally

Hancock High announces STAR student, teacher

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Jessica Stimens, daughter of Duane Stimens of Lakeshore, has been named as Hancock High Schools Student-Teacher Achievement Recognition (STAR) Student for the 2002-2003 school year. The Mississippi Economic Council's M.B. Swayze Educational Foundation sponsors the STAR Program. STAR students are selected on the basis of academic excellence, American College Test scores, and scholastic averages.

Each STAR student is asked to designate a STAR teacher, the classroom teacher who has made the greatest contribution to the student's scholastic achievement.

Stimens designated

dark skin was made even darker by the Mediterranean sun. Because we worked so closely with Navy personnel we had to keep ourselves clean shaven except for mustaches, but nonetheless, we looked scruffy. To anyone seeing us, we looked like just another person on the street. When we arrived in Sicily, we were forced to stay at a small hotel off-base due to the increase in planes and their crews because of the Achille Lauro hijacking. In the early morning hours of the next day, we were greeted at the base entrance by heavily-armed guards and an armored personnel carrier that kept its large gun pointed at us. The guards made us get out of our car and go through a lengthy process of identifying ourselves while they suspiciously looked in every crevice of our car.

I watched them nervously. The dirty car they were examining was actually a small base pool vehicle that had been foolishly loaned to us the day before with strict admonition not to take it off-base. When we took it off-base to our hotel the night before, Bob and I had spent some time getting it dusty and making it look as grungy as it did to the guards in the dark of the early morning.

When we were finally cleared, Bob dropped me off at the flight line and headed to Flight Operations. I picked up the two instrumented briefcases and started on foot to where two planes were being readied for flight. A red light was flashing atop each and dark figures could be seen moving about, getting the planes ready. The briefcases were heavy and I was breathing hard when I got to the marine guard standing with a loaded shotgun at the foot of the first plane's boarding ladder.

He stared at me for a moment as I made two trips up the ladder with the briefcases, and then turned away to watch the slowly lightening sky. Inside, the only light was from red light bulbs and dark figures moved up and down the narrow aisle. I made my way to a long row of instrument consoles. Putting down the briefcases, I worked myself behind the first console and removed several wires. I was surprised that the nuts holding them in place seemed extremely tight as Bob had used them the day before.

Soon I had attached cables from the briefcases to replace the disconnected ones. I pushed one briefcase tightly behind the console and opened the second. In moments, a small dial lit up and the built-in computer began its five minute start-up tests.

I sat waiting, debating whether I should get up and put on my flight suit and boots that I had left on the plane the night before. There had been some grease on the console leads and I found that I had smeared some of it on my tee shirt. So much for the clean-cut American look. One of the crew stepped over my legs stretched out into the aisle and I tried pulling in a little more out of the way. A crewmember sat down at the next console and began his own warm-up routine.

As he did this, I realized something was wrong. I didn't know him! In fact, I hadn't recognized a single person since I had come on board. I had not spoken a word and no one had said anything to me. I stopped the next sailor that went by.

"What's the tail number of this aircraft?"

He rattled it off and hurried on. I reached behind the console, retrieved the briefcase undid the leads and, as quietly and unobtrusively as possible, exited the plane, walking past the Marine guard who was still looking mesmerized by a sky blooming in the light of the rising sun.

As I walked to the next plane in line, I met Bob who wanted to know what I had been doing on "that plane." I muttered something, as Bob began to talk about what we were going to do that day. As we talked, it became fairly light and I watched the other plane, its marine guard gone, its door tightly shut and, heavy with fuel, slowly taxi out to the end of one of the runways. Soon it was gone, out on patrol in the area of the Achille Lauro. Later that day, our own P-3 dropped down to almost deck level to take photographs of a damaged Russian submarine we found lying beside a Russian tender in an anchorage near Tunisia. Bob and I had been looking for it and were happy to see it. What had caused it to be so heavily damaged was one of the same ocean movements Bob and I were studying. We flew very, very close to the submarine and I could see the individual Russians sailors taking pictures of us as we took pictures of them. I still have some of the pictures.

Looking back from the perspective of today I can see that our flight that day was an action in a cold war that was just starting to wind down and that just to the east of us, another Navy P3 was flying an action in a cruder, less technical war, a war that was just beginning.

Beauty -- pretty Pass

This group formed a year ago when Pass Christian Mayor Billy McDonald asked Alicia Ellis, who was president of the Pass Chamber of Commerce at the time, to appoint a chairperson for the committee. Voigts claimed the position and the committee has been busy ever since.

"(Our mission is) to enhance our quaint city that is listed in the National Registry of Historical Cities, therefore maintaining the beauty that has prevailed for decades," Gwenn Voigts said.

With a mission in mind, the committee developed a major beautification project for their beloved city. This project would entail research and design, approval from the Mississippi Department of Transportation (MDOT), fund-raising, planting and maintenance.

The committee also need some major supporters in order to get the project on its feet. These key players include Mayor McDonald, Harrison County Supervisor Marlin Ladner, Chris Bryan from MDOT, Chip McDermott and the rest of the board of aldermen.

After they had their support, Voigts and Ellis kicked-started the project with a trip to Fairhope, Ala., for a conference with the director of public works there.

"(The director) gave us the fundamentals of establishing a project like this from the base up," Voigts said.

To further their knowledge of planning the overall project, Voigts also spoke with George DeCoux, the director of leisure services of Gulfport.

Voigts then attended the Harrison County Beautification Committee meetings. She later organized the Greater American Cleanup for Pass Christian in conjunction with the Greater Gulf Coast Cleanup.

A product of the Pass Christian Beautification Committee was Liberty Garden, which was established at the Pass Christian Chamber around the flagpole in memory of Sept. 11. The flowers were donated by Mr. and Mrs. Harry McArthur in memory of Ada Winchester and have been enhanced this year by Polly Justice.

The committee's first major project was located at Davis Avenue and Highway 90. Several committee members did the actual planting with the guidance of Dr. Pat Johnson.

They spent approximately $2,000 on their first project. Their major contributor was Marlin Ladner, a member of the Harrison County Board of Supervisors. Other contributors included the city of Pass Christian, St. Paul's Catholic Church, Parkers Inc. and Hancock Bank. Dr. Tom Drake donated plants, and Dr. Pat Johnson volunteered many hours of work and donated several plants of her own.

"(It) sure makes a difference," Voigt thought after the first project was completed in mid-April. "I felt proud to be a part of this project and work alongside so many caring people who feel the same about The Pass as I do."

With their first project under their belts, committee members are now considering their next project at the entrance located at Market Street and Highway 90. The committee hopes the overall project will be a "continuation of the beauty along the Gulf Coast."

"We already have beauty on the east and west beaches of our city," Voigts said. "This project centered its efforts to draw beauty to the business district, which is the heart of our area."

Voigts said she was thankful to have so many people involved who were positive about the project. She was also thankful for a friend who visited the city a while back. Her friend's words provided quite a bit of inspiration. — "Pass Christian is like paradise."

FORTY YEARS AGO

April 18, 1963 - Kay O Polio Sunday. Stump out polio—they're calling it Kay O Polio Day—in Hancock County this Sunday. It's the biggest single community health campaign ever put on here, and the sponsoring Hancock County Health Society, Jaycees and the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion are mobilizing forces throughout the area in an effort to immunize against infantile paralysis every man, woman and child from infancy through old age. Six immunization clinics have been set up and will be open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. while every school bus in the county will be pressed into action to transport the public to these stations. The oral Sabin vaccine, fully tested and with no adverse after-effects, will be administered on a cube of sugar. For infants it will be fed by dropper. "There are no shots and no disagreeable taste," emphasized Dr. John Levens, chairman who was county health director until he recently opened his private practice here.

—Safe enough for his own. (Photo) Bouncing, wiggling 18-month old John Levens, III, is subdued just long enough for his doctor daddy to pop into his mouth three drops of the oral Sabin vaccine which will be administered to all ages throughout the county this Sunday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. at six different clinics. Tots up to 24 months will get the dose by dropper, others will get theirs on a cube of sugar.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

2002 Annual Drinking Water Quality Report Kiln Water & Fire Protection District PWS# 0230050 April 2003

We're pleased to present to you this years Annual Quality Water Report. This report is designed to inform you about the quality -ter and services we deliver to you every day. Our constant goal is to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water. We want you to understand the efforts we make to continually improve the water treatment process and protect our water resources. We are committed to ensuring the quality of your water. Our water source is from three wells drawing from the Graham Ferry Formation Aquifer.

The source water assessment has been completed for our public water system to determine the overall susceptibility of its drinking water supply to identified potential sources of contamination. The general susceptibility rankings assigned to each well of this system are provided immediately below. A report containing detailed information on how the susceptibility determinations were made has been furnished to our public water system and is available for viewing upon request.

Kiln Water & Fire District- Well #1 230050-01 moderate susceptibility to contamination
Well #2 230050-02 moderate susceptibility to contamination
Well #3 230050-03 No Ranking

If you have any questions about this report or concerning your water utility, please contact Pat Curet at 228-255-2595. We want our valued customers to be informed about their water utility. If you want to learn more, please attend any of our regularly scheduled meetings. They are held on the second Wednesday of each month at 7:00 PM at Fire House.

The Kiln Water & Fire Protection District routinely monitors for constituents in your drinking -ter according to Federal and State laws. This table shows the results of our monitoring for the period of January 1st to December 31st, 2002. As -ter travels over the land or underground, it can pick up substances or contaminants such as microbes, inorganic and organic chemicals, and radioactive substances. All drinking -ter, including bottled drinking water, may be reasonably expected to contain at least small amounts of some constituents. It's important to remember that the presence of these constituents does not necessarily pose a health risk.

In this table you will find many terms and abbreviations you might not be familiar with. To help you better understand these terms we've provided the following definitions:

Action Level - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.

Treatment Technique (TT) - (mandatory language) A treatment technique is a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL) - (mandatory language) The "Maximum Allowed" (MCL) is the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking -ter. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG) - (mandatory language) The "Goal" (MCLG) is the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level (MRDL) - (mandatory language) The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants.

Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal (MRDLG) - (mandatory language) The level of a drinking -ter disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.

TEST RESULTS
Contaminant	Violation Y/N	Date Collected	Level Detected	Range of Detects or # of Samples Exceeding MCL/LCL	Unit Measurement	MCLG	MCL
Inorganic Contaminants
10 Barium	N	2002	015	.007 - .015	Ppm	2	2
14 Copper	N	2002	376	0	ppm	1.3	AL=1.3
17 Lead	N	2002	4	0	ppb	0	AL=15

* Most recent sample. No sample required for 2002.

As you can see by the table, our system had no violations. We're proud that your drinking water meets or exceeds all Federal and State requirements. We have learned through our monitoring and testing that some constituents have been detected however the EPA has determined that your water IS SAFE at these levels.

All sources of drinking water are subject to potential contamination by substances that are naturally occurring or man made. These substances can be microbes, inorganic or organic chemicals and radioactive substances. All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the -ter poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immunocompromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from i fections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guide, ines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

The Kiln Water & Fire Protection District works around the clock to provide top quality water to every tap. We ask that all our customers help us protect our water sources, which are the heart of our community, our way of life and our children's future.

STAR student, teacher announced at St. Stanislaus

THE SEA COAST ECHO

St. Stanislaus senior, Chad Allee, has been named as a STAR (Student-Teacher Achievement Recognition) Student for the 2002-2003 school year by the Mississippi Economic Council's M.B. Swayze Educational Foundation, sponsor of the STAR program, according to Brother Ronald Hingle, SC, Principal.

Chad Allee will be honored during the 13th annual Education Celebration, April 25, 2003, at Mississippi College in Clinton. This prestigious event is co-sponsored by Entergy.

Each STAR Student is asked to designate a STAR Teacher, the classroom teacher who has made the greatest contribution to the student's scholastic achievement.

Mr. Matt McKiernan was designated by Chad Allee as his STAR Teacher. Mr. McKiernan has been teaching for the past 4 years, and he currently teaches religion at St. Stanislaus College. He is also the Student Council moderator.

Chad Allee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Allee of Pass Christian, Mississippi. He is a member of the St. Stanislaus varsity basketball team, a

Senior Chad Allee and Mr. Matt McKiernan

National Merit Scholarship candidate, and was selected to Who's Who Among High School Students and to the National Society of High School Scholars.

STAR students are selected on the basis of academic excellence. Both ACT scores and high school class averages are compared to determine the school's STAR Student, explained Peggy Howard of Jackson, chief operating officer of the Swayze Foundation. "The STAR program encourages and promotes academic achievement among Mississippi's high school seniors," she said.

Nearly 500 STAR Students and STAR

Teachers will receive recognition from Mississippi Economic Council's Swayze Foundation at the April 25th celebration. The top 20 STAR Students and their STAR Teachers will be presented scholarships or awards provided by the Kelly Gene Cook, Sr., Charitable Foundation.

One of the top 20 STAR Students will be chosen as the Mississippi STAR Student for 2003 and will receive a $24,000 Cook Foundation Scholarship.

Additional local support for the STAR program is provided by Mississippi Economic Council members in communities across the state.

MS Mississippi Senior Pageant looking for possible contestants

The MS Mississippi Senior Pageant will be held July 11-12 at the US Armed Services Retirement Home in Gulfport. This pageant was founded to recognize the attributes, achievements, contributions and successes of women 60 and over who reached the "Age of Elegance." The winner will represent Mississippi in the Senior America Pageant in Reno, NV in November. For further information call Lucette Worrel (228) 467-1286 or e-mail worrel@bekksouth.net.

Professional Dry Cleaning... the Best choice for your clothing.

Diamondhead Cleaners, owned by Angie Welter, does more than just clean clothes, they provide specialized treatment to fabrics and trims that demand nothing less than expert care. In doing so, Diamondhead Cleaners consistently delivers "like-new" clothing to their valued customers.

As you well know, good clothing is expensive. Why would you trust your investment to anyone else but Diamondhead Cleaners? Angie Welter has been in the dry cleaning business for 17 years and has a growing list of satisfied and loyal customers. All work is performed in house at the Diamondhead location. Your clothing does not get shipped off to some unknown destination.

Industry research has decisively shown that clean clothing last longer. Professional cleaning by Diamondhead Cleaners removes food, beverage, and perspiration stains that if left untreated can cause a permanent stain and even fiber damage. The expert pressing done by Diamondhead Cleaners preserves the proper fit and drape of your garments.

Consumers today are seeing a flood of do-it-yourself kits for your "dry clean only" clothes. They even claim to remove stains. Don't be misled, these products cannot replace professional drycleaning, they could even make your stain worse!

Diamondhead Cleaners is now open in Kiln, MS at 16327 Hwy 603. The Kiln location offers the same great service you've come to expect from the Diamondhead location. They offer alteration, heirloom, leather and swede cleaning with free Diamondhead pick up and delivery. Boot and shoe repair is also available.

Diamondhead Cleaners has the expertise to maximize the appearance as well as the lifespan of your wardrobe. After all, isn't that what you want from a dry cleaner? Don't trust your valuable clothing to anyone else but Diamondhead Cleaners. For more information, please call Angie at 255-8039 or 255-8606

Reflections On Life Easter People vs. Culture of Death

No sooner had Scott Peterson been charged with capital murder for the death of his wife Laci and their near-term unborn son than a New England member of the National Organization of Women blasted the prosecution's decision on the usual grounds that fetuses of any age are not human beings, and therefore do not have the rights of human beings.

To their partial credit, the national contingent of NOW repudiated the local member's tirade, giving consideration to the crushed feelings of the grieving family of Laci Peterson. Still, reading between the lines, we peer at the cold overall thrust of NOW which sanctions the murder of a fetus up to 6 months.

Although NOW would never want to admit that the moniker fits them and their philosophy/theology to a T, they are among the foremost evangelists of the manifest culture of death. The legal sanction of that philosophy/theology is the dire pronouncement of the U.S. Supreme Court on January 22, 1973 which opened the door for the slaughter of over 38 million unborn babies.

It is a fearful, shameful, incredible fact that the numbers of the butchered unborn in this country alone exceed by far the total dead of just about all the wars around the world taken together, except for the outsize figures of World War II. How we routinely kill our babies says much more than we care to about our disdain for life and our enslavement to the culture of death.

If we do this to mere babies, the most innocent, the most helpless, the most vital and important in the genealogical chain of our human existence, to what depths of depravity and evil will we sink when dealing with adults?

In this hellhole culture of death, there are no limits to the toxins of evil.

More than anything else, the women of NOW, together with women or men within or without any organization whatever, should sound the alarm when the womb, the most sacred sanctuary of human life and values, is being violated by murderous tools which terminate God's gift of life.

In total irony, it came to light during the Persian Gulf War of 1991 that the 220 Allied combat deaths were far less than the national total of drug-driven homicides in any given week here in the United States. It is a melancholy thought that we would enjoy a statistical advantage of survival in the war zones of Iraq rather than in many neighborhoods of our big U.S. cities.

Our culture of death surfaced again in the current war against Saddam Hussein where thousands of Iraqis were killed, but only some 175 of the Coalition troops. Once more, a recent local triple murder forced us to realize sadly that we might survive better in the war zone of the Middle East.

Reflections on Life

by Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Yes, our cities sound like an urban war zone when we read that our police officers' bullet-proof vests have been rendered obsolete because of newer, more powerful weapons in the hands of criminals. By the same token, the police weapons are being updated to match the bad guys' hardware.

Through the courtesy of Phoenix Distributors of Pennsylvania, a gun manufacturer eager to model their wares, the New Orleans police will now have 27 Colt M16A2 commando .223-caliber machine guns, six Gene-Tech M4-02 Predator suppressors, 35 surefire tactical lights, 35 Trijicon ACOG scopes, and 74 Colt .223 magazines. Which war is this for?

We Easter people live in this surreal environment of the culture of violence and death which numbs us to the fact that we live constantly in a war zone where life is cheap and death is taken for granted. Who, then, would be thinking about resurrection and eternal life in paradise?

Secular, especially mercenary interests address, present and publicize violence and death merely as tools of entertainment and financial gain. The familiar, reliable formula of melodramatic violence and titillating sex wins over and holds with an iron grip TV and theater audiences of every class. So entertainment merchants are happy to exploit this manifest culture of death.

Given this venal exploitation of the most painful and trying experiences of human beings, it is no wonder at all that the culture of death holds most of the world in its ugly grip. No wonder the idea of resurrection and eternal life rarely, if ever, crosses the mind of our everyday wayfarer on Planet Earth.

Giving in to the manifest culture of death, or, worst of all, exploiting it for filthy gain, will serve only to lead us individually and collectively down the slippery slope of ultimate sadness, despair and destruction. We hardly need think about what we have done to ourselves by killing 38 million unborn babies who, for all we know, would have represented the best among us.

"Why do you seek the living one among the dead? He is not here, but he has been raised!" (Luke 24:5,6) These were the words the apostles and the first disciples so badly needed to hear. They are the same words we need to hear in the worst way. Though assailed by the powers of darkness, neglect or plain indifference, we Easter people will overcome all evil by God's grace.

The "Word" for the Week John 1:1-9 Donald J. Prater • Box 303 • Bay St. Louis, MS 39521

One of our ongoing jobs is to identify and describe everything around us was the task of Adam in the Garden.

"Out of the ground God formed every beast of the field and every bird of the sky, and brought them to the man to see what he would call them; and whatever the man called a living creature, that was its name" (Genesis 2:19).

This was the beginning of the process of naming all the fauna, and flora. The animals are all given distinctive names. The birds, snakes, mammals, insects, and reptiles are all specifically named.

The different species of trees and tulips, dandelions and daisies, shrubs and grass each have names by which they are identified. I wonder how any one could consider truth to be relative.

Why if truth were relative, a puppy might be a snake, and two plus two might be five. Science would be impossible. You could never get a firm diagnosis from a doctor because he could never pinpoint and accurately name a disease. Mathematics would be impossible.

A college professor might say that two plus two equals five. You could say, "Not for me. Two plus two equals six." Of course, all of this is foolishness. So why do we use the same arguments when it comes to morality? Are there no absolute moral standards? Of course there are.

The proof is your own conscience. Listen carefully to the practicality of the Bible on this point. "For when Gentiles who do not have the Law do instinctively the things of the Law, these, not having the Law, are a law to themselves, in that they show the work of the Law written in their hearts, their conscience bearing witness, and their thoughts alternative-nately accusing or else defending them" (Romans 2:14-15).

"Out of the ground God formed every beast of the field and every bird of the sky, and brought them to the man to see what he would call them; and whatever the man called a living creature, that was its name"

Scardino directs 'Noises Off!' at BSLLT

BY SHANNON JENKINS
Staff Writer

When Theresa Scardino set out to direct her first production, she selected one of the most hilarious and difficult plays in theater history.

The Columbia native tackled Michael Frayn's chaotic "Noises Off," which reveals the pandemonium that sometimes arises within the theater.

"I saw the show a few years ago and fell in love with it," she said. "Noises Off" is an extremely funny show, and I wanted something that people would enjoy.

Scardino wanted to direct a show at Bay St. Louis Little Theatre that was well-known and had not been recently produced on the Coast.

"Because it is a difficult show with a complicated set, it is not normally done in little theater," she said. "Thus the challenge."

A challenge is exactly what she got.

So far, the set has been the most difficult factor of the show.

"Noises Off!" requires seven doors and one window, all of which must be fully functional. Every door and window is used by the actors. Parts of the set must also be removed during the second act.

"We have planned and planned again to make sure the measurements are just right before we erect walls," Scardino said. "Any set that has to move is difficult, but this particular one has many entrances and exits. We are accomplishing and meeting all of the requirements, but it takes some ingenuity on our part."

Although the set is critical to the show's success, the right cast is absolutely vital.

Since "Noises Off!" is a play about a play, Scardino needed actors who could portray two characters in one show.

"I needed an extremely flexible cast because many of the characters have to pull off two personalities," she said. "I didn't need striking differences between the two personalities, but I needed subtle differences. I also wanted portions of personalities to be innate."

Scardino also looked for dedication in her cast members.

"Basically, when you do your casting you do your homework," she said. "You try to get the people who you believe truly want this opportunity and who will work hard for that great show."

Like the set, Scardino believes she has accomplished meeting the script's requirements for a good cast.

"The cast has melded very well together even through some trials," she said. "I think everyone is going to leave with new friends."

Watching her cast perform has been her favorite part of directing the show.

"I enjoy watching the show and knowing that I had something to do with it," she said. "It gives me a greater sense of accomplishment. I'm going to be so very proud of everyone's hard work when we do finally get to perform. I think the little theater will be proud as well, and I know the community is going to love it."

Scardino believes the show will appeal to theater-lovers of all types.

"It shows everything any thespian has ever experienced, but it is exaggerated for the show," she said. "I think it will appeal to non-thespians because they will simply laugh at the absurdity of the show."

Catching Up With Elisabeth Rohm

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

"Law & Order" has had several female assistant district attorneys, and if Elisabeth Rohm has her way, she'll be the last.

As prosecutor Serena Southerlyn, the actress succeeded Jill Hennessy ("Crossing Jordan"), Carey Lowell and Angie Harmon as the partner of lawyer Jack McCoy (Sam Waterston) on the Wednesday-night NBC drama — now in its 13th season. Rohm is in her second year of the New York-based show, also seen in frequent TNT repeats.

Other co-stars' brief tenures imply a shelf life for the series' regulars, but Rohm plans to stay as long as executive producer Dick Wolf will have her.

"Not only do I love being in New York and that this is a culturally diverse show without that 'Hollywood' flair, but I'm part of a true ensemble," she says. "It's like being in a theater group where new people are always rotating in and out. The people who come in and out of every episode are phenomenal."

A self-admitted romantic with a yen for the past, "Law & Order" forces Rohm to be "more a part of the present" with its ripped-from-the-headlines approach.

"I expected that, but it's like love or anything else you dream about," she says. "Once you become part of it, it's not like your dreams — it's better. I expected I'd have to be on my toes in regard to learning about the law and current affairs. I have a very good friend who's a reporter, and I would say it's a similar mentality."

Elisabeth Rohm

With "Law & Order" nearing the end of its season, Rohm admits to retakes of scenes. "Mistakes are inevitable because everyone here is just a walking zombie by now, but we're still doing really well. There's no being lax in this job."

Birthplace: Dusseldorf, Germany (but raised in New York).

Birthdate: April 28.

Previous series roles: Alison Jeffers, "Bull"; police Detective Kate Lockley, "Angel"; Dorothy Hayes, "One Life to Live."

On working with "Law & Order" co-star Sam Waterston: "I think Sam would be an incredible director. I love his taste. He has great instincts, and besides my admiration of him, I just love being his partner. He never makes a false move. If a moment doesn't come to him, you'll never see it. I've learned from him how to find a simplicity in my work that I think is going to take me to great places beyond this one."

Sci-Fi's 'Warnings' shows 'signs' of Gibson movie hit

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Anyone who sat through "Signs," M. Night Shyamalan's inexplicably successful summer 2002 movie "thriller," is bound to get a powerful sense of déjà vu while watching "Silent Warnings," a Sci-Fi Channel movie premiering Saturday, May 3.

Like the movie blockbuster starring Mel Gibson as a man defending his remote farmhouse against nasty extraterrestrials, "Warnings" finds a band of college friends crept out by mysterious crop circles and shadowy figures moving through the tall corn surrounding the home of Joe Vossimer (Stephen Baldwin, in a glorified cameo), an eccentric rural Californian who died in a mysterious explosion.

After a brief prologue showing the last tense hours in Joe's life, the main story line opens as Layne Vossimer (A.J. Buckley), Joe's cousin, arrives to claim the run-down farmhouse, which he has inherited. Joining him are his girlfriend, Macy (Callie De Fabry), and four other friends.

They are stunned to find the abandoned farmhouse bearing signs of a long siege, and their frayed nerves are tested further by those crop circles and eerie noises in the night. With the local sheriff (Billy Zane), who had been a close friend of the late Joe, the college pals try to rally their meager resources in the face of what appears to be an otherworldly assault.

The worst thing about Shyamalan's glossy but sloppy movie hit was the way the director-screenwriter created one plot-hole after another — "terrifying" aliens who can't figure out how to escape a locked pantry, for example — and then threw enough big issues at the audience (God, faith vs. science, baseball) that some moviegoers actually convinced themselves there was something profound underneath it all.

At least "Silent Warnings" director Christian McIntyre and his enthusiastic cast make no bones about their ultimate goal: to scare the socks off you with a classic monster story. The low-budget constraints keep them from succeeding as often as they might have wanted, but taken on its own modest terms, "Warnings" offers far more honest jolts than Shyamalan's hoke-fest.

Johnathan Silverman

Cable staple Jonathan Silverman, in The Movie Channel's "The Medicine Show" Saturday, May 3, says that unlike New Yorkers, Los Angelinos don't attend theater, yet the play he's in sells out nightly. "Every studio head and network

Julie Andrews plays Nanny and Eloise is 'rawther' bratty

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

In the elegant setting of the Palm Court in New York's Plaza Hotel, a harpist strums quietly while Julie Andrews sips tea. Though still beautiful, with dazzling blue eyes and an exquisite complexion, on this day she looks, well, rather dowdy.

That may be a heretical statement, but Andrews is on a break from playing Nanny in "Eloise at the Plaza," which airs Sunday, April 27, on ABC.

Despite Andrews' disguise, she is recognized by several people in the linen-appointed dining room, including a hotel worker who gushes about how much he loves her. She genuinely thanks him as if no one has ever paid her such compliments.

To explain why she appears rounder than usual, Andrews stands, and slaps her padded hindquarters, saying, "This is Nanny right here." She laughs, then adds, "And it is being aided very well by a certain scone."

Her assistant pours more tea, and as members of the crew keep coming over to change her start time for the next day - she is even gracious when they move it to 5:30 a.m. - Andrews considers why she took this role.

Nanny is all to Eloise, the literary brainchild of the late Kay Thompson who was brought to life by illustrator Hilary Knight. An independent and feisty child (the less kind would say a brat), Eloise has more money than family.

"You never see her mum," Andrews says. "Maybe Nanny was mum's nanny. Why else would she trust her, to leave Eloise? At least it justifies it to me."

Eloise, who tries the patience of The Plaza staff, is allowed to keep her sneakers-wearing, raisin-eating turtle, Skipperdee, and pug dog, Weenie, at the fancy digs.

Andrews recalls reading the book shortly after arriving in the United States. And co-star Jeffrey Tambor, who plays the hotel manager, Mr. Salomone, read the books to his daughter. "I do remember the picture of him bowing," Tambor says of his character.

He reflects on how the books capture a nearly vanished level of gentility. "My guy is all about service and manners and a certain way something is done," Tambor says. "My guy is all about perfection, and I like that."

Andrews, too, gives much thought to Nanny's persona. "She's earthy and slightly bawdy and loves her glass of beer," Andrews says. "She loves to watch the fights on TV, and she thinks Eloise can do no wrong. She is having to deal with a turtle and a dog."

"I was worried I wouldn't do the character justice. Now I sort of enjoy it."

The ever-forgiving and loving Nanny weighs in at 252 pounds (or 18 stones, as Eloise says in the book). Her hair constantly struggles to free itself from a bun, and she wears a plain blouse and skirt and sensible shoes.

"It is refreshing to just let everything go," Andrews says. "I don't have to think of sucking in my gut or crossing my legs. It is hugely emancipating."

Andrews adopts a plummy British accent to enunciate "rawther," one of Nanny's favorite words. "For a while, I resisted it because nannies have been coming my way," Andrews says, deadpan. She is, of course, the most famous nanny ever to grace a screen as "Mary Poppins" (1964) and Maria in "The Sound of Music" (1965).

"She is such a different nanny from the other two," Andrews says. "It was the chance to do a tongue-in-cheek, different kind of nanny. I may get it right this time."

Julie Andrews stars as Nanny in ABC's "Eloise at the Plaza" on Sunday. "The gilds in the Plaza have an extra gleam," Andrews says of the exquisite old-world hotel. "The reds are the reddest."

Indeed, she is completely convincing as a nanny devoted to her charge in a film faithful to the books. And Sofia Vassilieva's performance perfectly captures the mischievous and imperious Eloise. Devotees of the books, the first of which was published in 1955, should watch for Knight's fitting cameo as an artist sketching Eloise.

Outside The Plaza, the stage is set for the late 1950s, harkening back to a New York when subways had wicker seats and little girls wore black pleated skirts with white blouses. Among the props is a pushcart selling hot dogs for 15-cents and sodas or pretzels for a nickel each. Extras saunter by in vintage dresses, hats with veils and matching gloves.

Hunt, Derwin are old friends and colleagues

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q What other TV shows has Mark Derwin appeared on before ABC's "Life With Bonnie"? He has great chemistry with Bonnie Hunt. -J. Young, Columbus, Ohio.

A That's not surprising, since like virtually everyone else on the show, the 42-year-old actor is an old friend of Hunt (he played news director Bill Kirkland in Hunt's 1995-96 CBS sitcom "The Bonnie Hunt Show"). Other series credits include "The Young and the Restless," "The Guiding Light" and "One Life to Live."

In fact, did you catch the "Life With Bonnie" episode this season in which Hunt's character, Bonnie Molloy, did a cameo appearance on a soap opera? Near the end of that episode, her husband, Mark (Derwin), commented that his idea of an ideal job would be to play a coma patient on a soap opera - an inside joke about the fact that his "One Life to Live" character, Dr. Ben Davidson, was put into a coma to allow Derwin to join the cast of "Life With Bonnie."

When her ABC sitcom premiered last fall, Hunt joked that she was going to monitor "OLTL" because if Derwin's character started coming out of his coma, she would know her own show was being canceled.

Q Who was the precious little boy who played Tommy in the March 14 episode of "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit"? He clearly dominated the whole episode. -J. F., Tacoma, Wash.

A You aren't kidding. That episode, titled "Desperate," featured 7-year-old newcomer Max Jensen Weinstein in a shattering performance as a young boy who had witnessed his mother's brutal murder at the hands of his abusive father (guest star Rob Estes).

Previously, the talented lad appeared in commercials for Dunkin' Donuts and Tropicana, as well as episodes of "The District," "Presidio Med" and "American Dreams." NBC's publicist for "Law & Order: SVU" says young Weinstein's performance will be submitted for Emmy consideration.

Dr. Frasier Crane is listening as Kelsey Grammer is talking

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

After playing pompous yet caring Dr. Frasier Crane for 19 years, Kelsey Grammer still enjoys the good doctor. During a hectic week in which he was directing the season finale of "Frasier" (which is slated to air May 20), he spoke about the Tuesday, April 29, episode, "The Devil and Dr. Phil."

The story line has straight-talking psychologist Dr. Phil McGraw guest-starring as himself and Harriet Sansom Harris reprising her role as Frasier's former agent, Bebe. She is the supposed mastermind behind Dr. Phil's phenomenal success, causing Frasier to consider whether firing her was a mistake.

In other plot developments, Martin (John Mahoney) is determined to remain stalwart despite being assigned rotten shifts, and Daphne and Niles (Jane Leeves, David Hyde Pierce) obsess over an older couple having coffee at Caf Nervosa.

If Grammer plays Frasier for one more year - which he plans to - he will match James Arness (Matt Dillon from "Gunsmoke") for the longest stint with a TV character. He has won three Emmy Awards for outstanding lead actor on "Frasier," and has been nominated for playing the character on "Cheers" and as a guest star on "Wings." Grammer likes Frasier, he says, because "his conscience always gets the better of him."

And after nearly two decades of portraying a man who tries to help others, Grammer says he truly understands how the character thinks. "When it comes to Frasier giving advice, at least on the psychological front, I try to make it as close as to what I would tell somebody," he says from his Los Angeles home.

With that in mind, Grammer, a wonderful sport, offers off-the-cuff analyses of the show's five main characters.

Scenario: Dr. Frasier Crane is a divorced, middle-aged man who, though professionally accomplished and financially secure, worries constantly about class and status, attaching tremendous importance to material possessions. His closest relationships are with his authoritarian father, with whom he lives, and his younger brother. He is unable to sustain a relationship with a woman. Fear of commitment, or something deeper?

Analyses: Although he seeks approval on a constant level, he is also very resistant to change. So, the fear of commitment is also a fear of changing his life. ... For the final season (next year) we will probably go wrestling with that and have him land on whatever side he lands on.

Scenario: Roz Doyle is a single working mother with a small child has no strong social ties outside of work. Her romantic relationships are brief and compulsive to the point of promiscuity. Does this pose a danger to her or to her role as a mother?

Analyses: Her promiscuity is wrapped up in her unwillingness to grow up ... When she gets the idea of maturing, she will have a very rewarding life.

Scenario: Dr. Niles Crane is recently married, middle-aged man. His first marriage was to a socially prominent heiress. He's now married to his father's former physical therapist, an immigrant from humble social beginnings. Does this new relationship mark a step forward in his life? Or is it overcompensation for past relationships? Is his need for strong women significant?

Analyses: He is a man on the brink of freeing himself of this need for strong women. He has finally found a person that doesn't overwhelm him, and he is starting to realize that he never needed that.

Scenario: Daphne Crane is recently married. Her first marriage was never consummated; her second marriage is to one of her client's sons, a middle-aged neurotic in need of constant mothering. Is her compulsion to take care of people the sign of a genuine nurturer? Or is this a way to conceal her constant need for control?

Analyses: She is probably more shaped by her experience with her brothers than anything else. Her desire is really to be recognized as being important by caring for someone, and, of course, you do achieve that. That may have led her into being a health care professional. In this relationship, for the first time, she is in a true position in a home, and she actually luxuriates in that position.

Scenario: Martin Crane is a widowed retiree with a disability. He lives with his oldest son and is in steady contact with his younger son. Yet, despite their involvement in his life, he privately views both men as falling short of his own ideals of masculinity. His greatest displays of affection are reserved for his dog, with whom he has regular conversations. Is this a warning sign of a deeper disturbance?

Analyses: You can call these things warning signs if you wish. It is more of a generational orientation than anything else ... You can't sit back and blame him for not being all kissy-feeley as we would like him to be. He served other people throughout his life, and he did his job well. His sons, though alien to him in many ways, are men who emulate him and have a chosen a career in which to serve."

Grisham's most personal yarn comes to life on CBS

By John Crook
© Zap2it

The novel John Grisham calls "my favorite of all the books I have written" comes to life in a loving Hallmark Hall of Fame adaptation premiering Sunday, April 27, on CBS.

Scott Glenn and Robert Sean Leonard head the cast of "A Painted House," based on Grisham's 2001 novel that was in turn loosely based on his early childhood experiences growing up on the Arkansas Delta.

"When I write some books, I am able to weave a novel around a particular issue and get people to at least think about it and maybe even influence the way they think," Grisham says. "With other books, I just try to entertain. This is just a very sweet childhood memoir, my favorite of all the books I have written now because it is so different."

Set in the 1950s, the story is seen through the eyes of 10-year-old Luke Chandler (Logan Lerman, "The Patriot"), who is part of a family of cotton growers trying to get through a harvest season despite challenges from both capricious weather and increasingly sharp racial tensions between their Mexican and hillbilly migrant workers.

In fact, this season will mark a time of passage for Luke, his parents (Leonard, Arija Bareikis) and grandparents (Glenn, Melinda Dillon), a transition unexpectedly marred by violence and horror.

"House" is a semiautobiographical work, Grisham explains, in that the setting, main characters and context are faithfully replicated from his early childhood, even if the more intensely dramatic elements of the story line are fabricated.

"For the first seven years of my life, I was very much like Luke in 'A Painted House,'" the novelist recalls. "I lived on that farm in Black Oak, Ark. The setting is very accurate, with the cotton and the Mexican migrant laborers, the battles with the weather, the struggle to harvest a good crop and pay some bills. The setting is very accurate, but then the fiction takes over."

"The really dramatic conflicts that you see in the movie are variations of stories I've heard, but most of those stories are probably false, especially the ones coming from my side of the family. A lot of b.s., you know?" he chuckles.

Grisham, who has seen six of his other novels previously adapted for the big and small screens, retained a considerable measure of creative control over the project but says he still braced himself for inevitable changes.

"I'm always anxious to see on film somebody else's vision of something else that I saw," he says. "And it's never, never remotely close to what I saw, but it almost always is enjoyable to watch. There are certain elements of this story that had to be captured properly, especially the elements concerning nature working against the family. Also, the tensions both within the family and without, as well as the flavor of this small town, were captured very well."

"Hallmark is such a class outfit, so easy to work with, and there are no surprises," he adds. "We did everything almost by handshake, pretty much. In fact, everybody showed up to start work on the first day of principal photography and someone suddenly realized that I never actually had signed a contract for the film rights to 'A Painted House.' They had to hold up production and scramble around and fax me a contract to sign before they could start filming. That's how laid-back it was and how well everybody behaved."

"I think it's a good two-hour escape on Sunday night."

NBC's Cantey says successful trainers know their horses

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

There is a very good reason why winners of the Triple Crown are few and far between. Each race - the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness Stakes and the Belmont Stakes - offers its own unique challenge.

In the Derby, which NBC airs Saturday, May 3, from Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., contenders stride alongside the creme de la creme of Thoroughbred racing and the field often runs 20 or more.

After this test of negotiating skills, the challenge becomes one of resiliency in the Preakness. Held at Baltimore's Pimlico Race Course, it is the series' shortest race at 1 3/16 miles, but it also follows the shortest rest period - two weeks. Conventional wisdom has it that Thoroughbreds run best with a month between races.

The Belmont Stakes, the finale held in early June at New York's Belmont Park, is a test of endurance. At a gargantuan 1 1/2 miles, it is the series' longest race.

With three such separate and distinct challenges, and with developments occurring before, during and after each race, it is impossible for a trainer to employ an overall strategy. The best thing to do, NBC's Charlie Cantey says, is to simply know your horse. "It's interesting, because in all of the 100 years-plus of the Triple Crown, there is no real overview. There's no real set plan. I mean, some years, the New York route works.

Some years, the Bluegrass route works. I mean, there's no set plan. I think it depends on each crop, how it comes up, how the horses just happen to have fallen into whose hands and how it works. So there's no given plan. If there was, everybody would take the same route. So what you've got to do is be flexible.

"The most important thing of all is you've got to know your horse. You've got to know exactly what they need. You've got to know exactly where they are. And the really good horsemen have got that figured out."

A common pitfall for many trainers is bringing a horse to the Derby before it is ready. "We're getting more and more lightly raced horses," says Cantey, a former trainer and exercise rider. "What's happening now is that we don't have the horses with the solid foundation under them as a 2 year old. We're getting horses that are breaking their maiden in December and January, and they're stretching out. And obviously they've got the pedigree and obviously they've got the talent. But it always reminds me of that old Campbell's Soup commercial: 'Is it soup yet?' The ingredients are there, but they're not always cooked and finished. They're still putting blinkers on, putting blinkers off, taking them back, putting them up against the pace. They've got the ingredients, but it hasn't all melded into a real positive stew yet. So they're still trying to figure these horses out as they go and this is something I bring up every year. I feel like it's boring, but I think it's so pertinent. You look at it every year and you think that they're trying to get them congealed in time for the first weekend in May, and how to do it goes back to what I'm saying about you need to know your horse."

But if done right, accelerating a horse's training has a history of success. Cantey cites Monarchos, the 2001 Derby winner, as one such case. "I thought it was one of the greatest training jobs I ever saw," she says. "(John Ward Jr.) took a horse in five starts from maiden to Kentucky Derby winner. And he knew his horse. He knew exactly where he was at every minute. ... I saw that horse and I thought, 'Ohhhhhhhh man! This horse, he didn't hit the ground as good as any horse I've ever seen, but John knew where he was. He was quietly confident. He knew his horse.'"

Sometimes the horse is ready, but the ride is bad. Cantey feels this is what happened two years ago with Point Given, the odds-on favorite who wound up finishing a disappointing fifth in the Derby before sweeping the Preakness and Belmont.

"You see that they didn't quite know him yet," Cantey says. "He wasn't quite, in their minds, soup. They didn't know exactly what they had. The ingredients were there; they knew he could run. But should he come to a fast boil or a slow boil? As it turned out, he needed to be a little slower boil. And his best races later were when they took him back. But he was on the fast boil in the Derby and he was up close and ran on too much early and flattened out."

"NASCAR Winston Cup Auto Club 500" Sunday, April 27 (Fox, 2:30 p.m. ET): Following one of the few off weeks on the Winston Cup schedule, the NASCAR boys get back behind the wheel today at California Speedway for the Auto Club 500. Jimmie Johnson rode off with the victory last year, making it four-straight seasons in which a rookie has won at least one race. Also, eight different drivers have finished first to open this season, continuing last year's trend of 18 different race winners.

"Boston Red Sox at Anaheim Angels" Sunday, April 27 (ESPN, 8 p.m. ET): The Boston Red Sox recently picked up Pedro Martinez's hefty contract for next season, but he might be happier if they picked up a decent closer. The Sox bullpen-by-committee approach failed to hold leads in Pedro's first two starts, and the lack of a strikeout reliever other than Alan Embree may continue to hurt them, especially tonight against Anaheim. David Eckstein and the Angels are adept at working counts and putting the ball in play.

"HP Classic of New Orleans" Thursday, May 1 (USA Network, 4 p.m. ET): K.J. Choi can always say he challenged Jack Nicklaus and won. Well, not quite, but he can brag about becoming the first South Korean winner in PGA Tour history. The feat occurred a year ago at the Nicklaus-designed 7,078-yard English Turn course in New Orleans when Choi took the lead in the second round and never looked back, winning by four strokes. The HP Classic of New Orleans airs today through Sunday on USA Network and CBS.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Because of ongoing news coverage of the war, several soap episodes were preempted. As a result, some plot developments, which did not air as originally scheduled, have been carried over to this week's column, repeating items found in the April 7 column. We will continue to make similar adjustments as long as expanded media coverage of the war persists.)

All My Children

Erica was shocked when Liza accused her of being behind the lawsuit against Fusion. She told Boyd, who suspected Lena. Lena made it appear that a former Enchantment employee is the guilty party. Michael stepped up his threats after Lena refused to use Bianca to get Boyd's formula, but Lena still wouldn't do it and vowed to bring him down if he destroys her. After Henry was a hit playing guitar at SOS, he and Maggie made love. Kenny's legal skills helped Simon get a suspended sentence, but he was crushed when she left with Carlos. Coming: Jack's life is in peril.

As the World Turns

Jessica was shot when she burst into Marshall's room, where Bonnie had been waiting for him. Marshall made a statement to Margo protecting Bonnie, who wasn't arrested. Barbara got Henry to admit that Rose and Emily kidnapped her. Alison was injured saving Regina's life from a knife attack, and as Chris tended to Alison, she kissed him. Coming: Dusty tries to make his case with Molly.

Bold and Beautiful

Darla told Thome she's pregnant. Despite her misgivings, Darla decided to have an abortion, knowing that if the truth got out it would devastate Macy. Meanwhile, Thome was beyond consoling when the doctor told him that Macy had a cancerous growth on her uterus and they had to perform a hysterectomy. Massimo told Brooke that Ridge is his son, not Eric's. Brooke ripped into Stephanie for judging her all this time, while carrying around her own deception. Coming: Darla makes a fateful decision.

Days of Our Lives

Rex hoped that his underground laser would turn coal into diamonds, but when the device was accidentally tipped over, the laser caused a huge earthquake in Salem. Lexie was stuck in a pit and feared she was going into labor. Roman tried to rescue Kate from an abandoned building. John - trapped in a sauna - was left to die by Tony, and Nicole recovered from a car crash that left Victor unconscious. Rex was kidnapped by the man who sold him the laser part, and both John and Tony were hit for a million-dollar ransom. Coming: Abe is frantic to find Lexie.

General Hospital

Sonny devised a plan to use Faith as bait to expose Ric as her partner. Ric shot Faith - which was only a maneuver - but escaped and took Courtney hostage. Jason was held at gunpoint when he came to her rescue. A relieved Carly, knowing that Sonny is her baby's dad, told him how Ric drugged her drink and raped her. Monica confided to Emily that she knows Emily has cancer, but promised not to tell anyone. Coming: Luke and Lucky get hip to Summer's lie.

Guiding Light

As Alan recovered his faculties, Gus revealed that he is Alan's son. Phillip told Olivia that he wants to stay in charge permanently. Concerned that Alan could use Olivia's unborn child against them, Phillip questioned the doctor about a paternity test, but was rebuffed. Frank told Eden that the dead coroner found in the lake had her business card on him. Coming: Edmund tries reaching out to Cassie.

One Life to Live

When Jessica insisted on acting alone to gain Mitch's trust in order to reclaim what he took from her family, Antonio took her away as a material witness to keep Jessica safe. Jen was arrested for committing a robbery at the Place and was sentenced to therapy and community service. Marcie locked Al in her dorm room, determined to help him kick his drug habit. Flash and her band were a success at Capricorn, but she later coughed up blood. Coming: Blair and Dorian use Lindsay to help their case.

Passions

Eve wondered why Julian made his club look just like the one in Boston where they first met. Touched by his romantic memories, Eve admitted that she did love Julian. T.C. was angered to find Whitney singing at the Blue Note, and accused Chad of taking advantage of his daughter. Gwen was furious when Ethan promised to help Theresa keep custody of little Ethan. Coming: Eve makes a shocking admission to Liz.

McClain prepares for daytime's main event

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

On the morning of May 16, "As the World Turns" star Cady McClain (Rosanna Cabot) is determined to do anything but think about the "30th Annual Daytime Emmy Awards" that will be held later that evening.

McClain is grateful for her nomination in the outstanding supporting actress category, but she's nervous about the event, which will air on ABC.

"I was thinking it would be fun to take a balloon ride, go horseback riding or skateboard around City Hall," she says. "I want to do something silly and ridiculous that keeps me from thinking about that night."

It isn't the winning or losing that makes her nervous, it's the actual event. "My normal way of reacting to stress in my life is to act like some lady who is about to serve you tea," McClain says. "I get all proper sounding, put my hands in my lap, cross my ankles and freeze. Not until the whole bloody thing is over will I take a sigh of relief. I'm going to try and be more relaxed this year, but that is my usual way of reacting to the awards shows."

So what will she be wearing? "The thing that sort of occurred to me was to try and wear something that might recall a little bit of the early days of daytime," McClain says. "I do want something very breezy that reflects the history of what this industry is about."

McClain recently celebrated her one-year anniversary on "ATWT." "It has been a crazy year," she says. "It feels like it's been two sort of six-month chunks. The first six months we spent developing Rosanna, and the second half has sort of been the unwinding of her hard shell that she has wrapped around herself."

The often-witchy Rosanna is quite a bit different from Dixie Martin, the character McClain played on "All My Children." Dixie could be a bit of a doormat, and Rosanna is a whole new ballgame.

"I'm a pretty soft person in real life," McClain says, "so walking in to play Rosanna has been a big challenge. I had to talk myself into some of this aggressiveness, but it's been good for me."

Law & Order

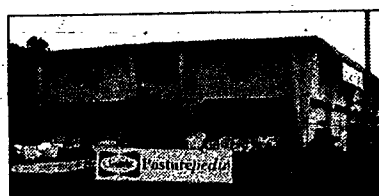

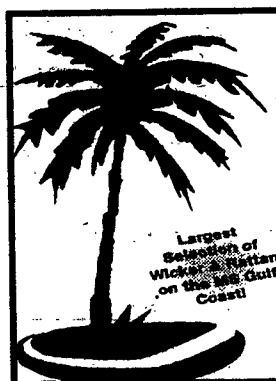

A private elementary school's admissions chief is murdered in the new episode "Kid Pro Quo," sending Briscoe and Green (Jerry Orbach, Jesse L. Martin) in search of the killer. Suspects include parents desperate to get their children into the school, but the investigation eventually focuses on the headmaster (guest star Roger Rees, "Cheers"). Gathering solid evidence against him proves challenging.

CSI: Crime Scene Investigation

A horse trainer dies in a bizarre way — apparently trampled by her animal aboard a private jet 30,000 feet above the ground — in the new episode "Forever." Grissom and Catherine (William Petersen, Marg Helgenberger) become suspicious of several other passengers, but the crucial evidence could be yielded by the horse after it dies. Warrick and Sara (Gary Dourdan, Jorja Fox) probe a supposed double suicide.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Will & Grace

Thanks to the success of "Home Alone," the image of Macaulay Culkin will stay forever young in many people's minds. However, he gets to show how much he's grown when he guest stars in the new episode "May Divorce Be With You." He plays the attorney hired by Karen (Megan Mullally) to handle her divorce proceeding. Will (Eric McCormack) is the opposing lawyer, and he's in for some surprises.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

Without a Trace

The case of an alleged pedophile prompts an internal investigation of the modus operandi of Jack (Anthony LaPaglia) and his team in the new episode "Are You Now, or Have You Ever Been ...

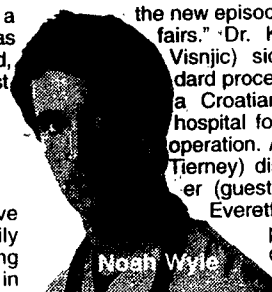

Jack is suspected of having coerced a confession from the suspect, and as each of the investigators is interrogated, a possibly permanent sense of distrust increases among them.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

ER

Dr. Carter (Noah Wyle) tries to move past his own grief over a family tragedy by advising a vengeful gang member (guest star Cory Hardict) in the new episode "Foreign Affairs." Dr. Kovac (Goran Visnjic) sidesteps standard procedures to bring a Croatian boy to the hospital for a life-saving operation. Abby's (Maura Tierney) disturbed brother (guest star Thomas Everett Scott) reappears at an inopportune time.

Sea-Coast Echo

Saturday Best Bets

4 p.m. on 6-NBC Kentucky Derby

And they're off — in the 129th edition of the Run for the Roses from Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky. The buzz on the backstretch had Florida Derby winner Empire Maker as one of the early favorites. Another Bobby Frankel-trained contender, Louisiana Derby winner Peace Rules, will be worth watching, as well as Buddy Gil, winner of the Santa Anita Derby. And Atswhatimtalknabout may have a lot to say about who wins today's fabled 1 1/4-mile race.

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Movie: Gladiator

Roman general Maximus (Russell Crowe) won't support the new emperor (Joaquin Phoenix), who killed his own father. Maximus escapes, but the emperor executes his family. Devastated by his loss and wounded while fleeing, Maximus is captured and sold into slavery, then puts his military training to use as a gladiator. Director Ridley Scott's 2000 adventure won five Oscars, including best picture and best actor (for Crowe).

7 p.m. on 4-CBS The Price Is Right Million Dollar Spectacular

It worked during the February "sweeps," so the long-running game show again goes prime time for the May ratings period with the first of several weekly specials offering contestants bigger cash prizes. Bob Barker presides over familiar games that have higher stakes. The other fixtures of the daytime version who turn up here are announcer Rod Roddy and the three models known as "Barker's Beauties."

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

Hunter

A horse race abruptly and tragically ends when a jockey and the animal he's riding are shot before they can reach the finish line in the new episode "Dead Heat." Hunter and McCall (Fred Dryer, Stephanie Kramer) search for the hit man who pulled the trigger, and also for the person who hired him.

7 p.m. on HBO

Movie: Spider-Man

The Marvel Comics "web-slinger" comes to life in director Sam Raimi's dazzling and record-smashing 2002 adventure. Tobey Maguire stars as studious Peter Parker, who is bitten by a radioactive spider and turned into a hero who must battle his best friend's (James Franco) crazed father (Willem Dafoe), alias the Green Goblin. Kirsten Dunst plays Mary Jane, worshipped from afar by Peter — though she adores his alter ego.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

The District

Ving Rhames ("Don King: Only in America") reprises his role as the attorney general in the new episode "Rage." After a videotape apparently shows Sgt. Brander (Wayne Duvall) exhibiting police brutality, rioting breaks out, with Mannion (Craig T. Nelson) shouldering the blame. He refuses to fire Brander, prompting the mayor (Joseph C. Phillips) to consider firing Mannion. Temple (Sean Patrick Thomas) pursues an old foe.

8 p.m. on TMC

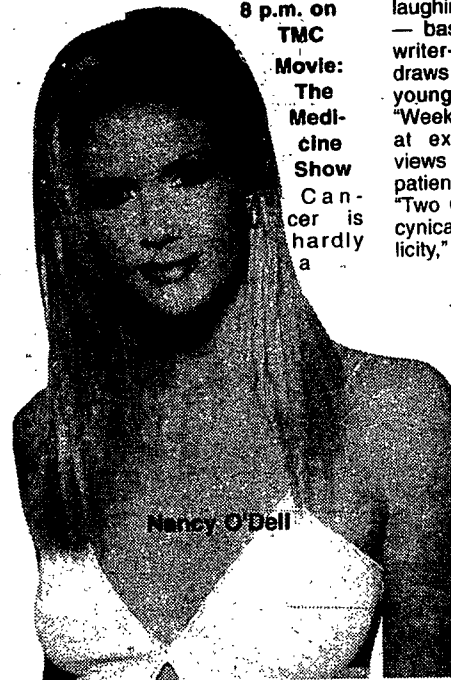

Movie: The Medicine Show

laughing matter, but this 2001 movie — based on the experiences of its writer-director, Wendell Morris — draws dark humor from the story of a young man (Jonathan Silverman, "Weekend Update" who cringes at expressions of sympathy. His views are reinforced by a leukemia patient (Natasha Gregson Wagner, "Two Girls and a Guy") every bit as cynical as he is. Greg Grunberg ("Felicity," "Alias") co-stars.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS

The Agency

In Mexico City, Stiles (Jason O'Mara) goes incognito as a filmmaker and becomes friendly with a Russian scientist (guest star Ralph Brown), suspected of producing a virus similar to anthrax in the new episode "Mi Cena Con Andrei." Fearing the disease will be sold to terrorists, Gage (Beau Bridges) orders the execution of the scientist, but Stiles has strong doubts about pulling the trigger.

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"TWO WEEKS NOTICE": Fans of Sandra Bullock or Hugh Grant should like their teaming in this light but enjoyable comedy produced by Bullock. She plays the latest lawyer hired by a womanizing real-estate tycoon (Grant), and try as she does to resist his charm, she can't help herself. She ends up quitting, but that doesn't necessarily mean the end of their association. Robert Klein and Dana Ivey play Bullock's parents; Alicia Witt also co-stars.  (PG-13: AS, P)

"TREASURE PLANET": The Robert Louis Stevenson classic "Treasure Island" gets updated and animated in this well-paced, cleverly enhanced Disney variation. Young Jim Hawkins (voice of Joseph Gordon-Levitt, "3rd Rock From the Sun") finds intergalactic thrills aboard a spaceship with his friend, a cyborg named John Silver (voice of Brian Murray) - who still is a pirate. Emma Thompson, David Hyde Pierce and Martin Short also are heard.  (PG: V)

"DARKNESS FALLS": An old terror resurfaces in a small town in this mildly effective melodrama. A century and a half after her lynching, a woman continues to avenge her death as the Tooth Fairy, who visits - and haunts - the young brother (Lee Cormie) of a woman (Emma Caulfield, "Buffy the Vampire Slayer") whose ex-boyfriend (Chasey Kley) was targeted by the same spirit in his boyhood. Largely predictable, the story still yields a few jolts.  (PG-13: AS, P, V)

Video Vantage

"AMERICAN FAMILY: THE COMPLETE FIRST SEASON": Created and produced by filmmaker Gregory Nava ("Selena"), this fine drama series - aired by PBS - charts the joys and setbacks of a modern Mexican-American family in East Los Angeles. Edward James Olmos plays the conservative patriarch, who is often at odds with his feminist daughter (Constance Marie). Sonia Braga, Esai Morales, Rachel Ticotin and Raquel Welch co-star.  (Not rated: AS, P, V)

"BIGGIE & TUPAC": Director Nick Broomfield, who profiled music stars "Kurt & Courtney," focuses on two others in this acclaimed documentary. Christopher Wallace, alias Biggie Smalls and The Notorious B.I.G., and Tupac Shakur were rap icons whose relationship drastically changed before they were murdered. Initially close friends, they became bitter rivals in the struggle between the East Coast and West Coast factions of the rap industry.  (R: AS, P, V)

"NAPOLEON": The life of one of history's most legendary military men is dramatized in this well-acted miniseries, recently shown on A&E Network. Christian Clavier stars as Napoleon Bonaparte, born in Corsica determined to lead the people of France into a new era - the Napoleonic Age, as it came to be known. He shares personal passion with Josephine (Isabella Rossellini). Gerard Depardieu, John Malkovich and Anouk Aimee also star.  (Not rated: AS, P, V)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"CATCH ME IF YOU CAN" (May 6): Steven Spielberg's fact-inspired comedy-drama casts Leonardo DiCaprio as a con man pursued by an FBI agent (Tom Hanks). (PG-13)

"THE EMPEROR'S CLUB" (May 6): A teacher (Kevin Kline) questions his choices, personally and professionally, when he is challenged by a student (Emile Hirsch). (PG-13)

"EXTREME OPS" (May 6): Devotees of extreme sports cross paths with terrorists, then must use their skills to survive. Devon Sawa and Bridgette Wilson-Sampras star. (PG-13)

"ANALYZE THAT" (May 13): A mobster (Robert De Niro) is released from prison into the custody of his therapist (Billy Crystal) in the sequel to the comedy "Analyze This." (R)

"THE HOT CHICK" (May 13): Rob Schneider stars as a perennial loser in love challenged more by the battle of the sexes when he's transformed into a woman. (PG-13)

"TALK TO HER" (May 13): Writer-director Pedro Almodovar's Oscar-nominated drama focuses on two men (Javier Camara, Dario Grandinetti) caring for comatose women. (R)

OLDIES BUT GOODIES

If your local video store is fresh out of new releases, give these a look:

"SELENA" (1997): Jennifer Lopez does solid acting - and obviously sings quite well - as the Tejano singer murdered just as she was starting a music crossover. ***

"TITAN A.E." (2000): Young survivors of an interplanetary attack seek other earthlings in an animated adventure with the voices of Matt Damon and Drew Barrymore. ***

On TV

It's upstairs vs. downstairs in PBS' 'Manor House'

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

Personal freedom was something in short supply for servants in early 20th-century England, and losing it came as a rude awakening for a group of today's young Britons.

In the tradition of "The 1900 House" and "Frontier House," "Manor House," airing Monday through Wednesday, April 28-30, on PBS, transports modern people into the Edwardian era.

The setting is Manderston, a sprawling Scottish country house, in the year 1905. While the location looks luxurious, it's all a matter of perspective, depending on whether you're looking up the stairs or down.

Playing the masters of Manderston are the Olliff-Coopers: 56-year-old businessman John, 52-year-old emergency room physician Anna, her 18-year-old son Jonty, and John and Anna's 9-year-old son, Guy. Joining them is Anna's 50-year-old sister, Avril Anson, a self-employed marketing consultant.

At their beck and call are: the butler, architect Hugh Edgar, 64; the chef, Denis Dubiard, 38; the lady's maid, dressmaker Eva Morrison, 44; Guy's tutor, teacher Reji Raj-Singh, 49; first and second footmen, sales manager Charlie Clay and university graduate Rob Daly, respectively, both 23; and the housekeeper, retired restaurateur Jean Davies, 60.

Preferably seldom seen and never heard are coachman-groom Tristan Aldrich, 18, a horse-driving expert; kitchen maid Antonia Dawson, 29, a police emergency operator; housemaids Rebecca Smith, 26, a tourist guide, and Jessica Rawlinson, 22, an office worker; hall boy Kenny Skelton, 18, a nursing home caregiver; and three scullery maids, the last (and longest-lasting) being Carly Ellen Beard (called Ellen in "Manor House"), 21, a customer service adviser.

Appearing in costume before reporters in Hollywood in January, John Olliff-Cooper (whom his former staff still reflexively call "Sir John") states, "I think I'm not overblessed with political correctness. I believe in hierarchy. I believe that people should work within their station, and I think that works very well."

As to coming home, his wife adds, "It has proved a terribly difficult experience. We had a fantastic time in the house. It's actually like winning the lottery ... (and someone) taking it all away again.

"There was no problem at all about going into the house. ... Once you understood that the whole system is class-based, and everything you must do or look or be has to be to show everyone else where they sit in the pecking order."

Reading this, it should come as no surprise that younger staffers had a hard time swallowing life at Manderston, and some hard feelings are still evident when Edgar (still respectfully called "Mr. Edgar"), Dawson and Skelton gather after the press conference.

Edgar says, "I actually became quite fond of (Sir John). ... I found it hard to believe myself when it happened."

"He just opens his mouth," Dawson says of Sir John, "and I honestly can't believe how ridiculous he sounds, and how he doesn't think he sounds ridiculous. He has no idea."

"This is a real shame," Skelton says, "because I feel quite sorry for him, in that respect. The more time I spend with him, the harder I find to connect. I did give a dodgy interview, and I was quite harsh about the guy."
